That's That
Marconi's New Baby
Governor Smith Builds
Lowest Wheat in 16 Years

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE SENATE, yesterday afternoon, confirmed the naval treaty, neatly constructed by Britain and Japan, to limit the fighting power of our ships.

The chief and ablest officers in our navy wanted eight-inch guns throwing 260-pound shells. We get, by order and permission of Japan and Britain, six-inch guns, throwing 105-pound shells.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, says we shall "spend a billion and be weaker at sea than we are." Congratulations are in order, for Britain and Japan.

Marconi, Italian electrical genius, and his wife have a little girl, just born. The mother certainly is disappointed, the father probably. Mothers want boys, to please fathers, fathers want boys to gratify their own vanity.

Fortunately nature interferes.

According to laws of heredity, daughters inherit and hand on to their children the genius of their fathers.

A son inherits the father's genius rarely. You can count the really great sons of great fathers on the fingers of two hands. Marconi has three daughters, two by his first wife, no sons.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, erecting a building on Fifth ave., in New York, where the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel used to be, intends that it shall be a REAL building. It will have 102 stories, and rise 1222 feet above Fifth ave., 20 per cent higher than any building ever erected by man, hitherto, excepting, of course, the Tower of Babel.

Even so, ex-Governor Smith's structure of brick and steel will be small compared with the monument of votes that he piled up in the last campaign.

His vote was almost 300 per cent greater than that ever cast for a Democratic presidential candidate.

Rather sad and dull in Wall Street yesterday, save a good opening for the brokers' week. Prices down, dismal "minus" signs were scattered all through the list.

Money went begging. You could borrow all you wanted at two per cent, or lower.

Cotton was very weak. And wheat, rocked in the protecting arms of Uncle Sam, was much feebler and unhealthier than in old days when rough "supply and demand" ruled it.

Politicians believe that wheat will be the big factor in the Western elections, with prices the lowest in 16 years.

The government was going to fix everything, through its farm board, and did invest millions, with painful results.

For a campaign song farmers might rewrite the sad old tune:

"You told me I'd be happy, but no happiness I see."

Stockholders and lawyers objecting to a merger of Bethlehem and another steel company discover that Eugene G. Grace, head of the Bethlehem Company, is paid a salary of $12,000 and got a bonus in 1929 of $1,623,753.

Some stockholders think the money should have gone to them, not to Grace.

They may be right, but the probability is that the Grace bonus was money wisely spent.

Iron, coal, fuel and machinery are plentiful, but brains that know how to utilize them are hard to find.

Gandhi's followers have a new idea. Instead of spending one full hour every morning in prayer, as is the custom in India, the Hindus of different castes start out at 5 o'clock in the morning and sing "hymns of hate against England."

They are mild hymns compared with some produced in the World War; they only advise Hindus to wear homespun, boycott British goods, etc.

What the gods of the Hindus, Parsees and others will think about substituting hymns for morning prayers remains to be seen.

More rioting and trouble in Egypt. 123 hurt. Egypt is far away and that is hardly news.

In New York, where this is written, the thermometer at the moment stands at 96. Twenty-eight are said to be dead. In some cases other things besides the temperature are to blame. In Ohio the mercury went to 110.

That is very hot for Ohio, but on California's Mohave Desert, where the wind blows from the Pacific ocean, 110 is just a nice

WIDOW LOSES SAVINGS IN STOCK DEAL

State Is to Charge Salesman Got Her Money Through Misrepresentation

An elderly widow, whose life savings were taken from her, has given the State its first weapon in its war on "high pressure" salesmen of stocks and securities.

Misrepresentations made by salesmen through which the widow was induced to turn over cash and gilt-edge securities in exchange for non-paying stock has laid the groundwork for charges of obtaining money by false pretenses to be made by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

The widow's story came to light through the Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau as Asst. Atty.-Gen. Louis H. Sawyer, in charge of the inquiry, announced the state was ready to obtain its first warrants against "blue sky" brokers and stock salesmen.

WIDOW'S STORY

Included among those against whom the first action will be taken are brokers who have recently invaded Greater Boston with stock in oil company misrepresented as owning "gushing wells in south Texas."

This company's claims are fraudulent in the belief of Mr. Sawyer. But the widow's story is the first in which criminal action is planned against salesmen of

POLICE ORDER GIRL OUT OF TREE SEAT

Hub's Only Puts in 27 Hours Free From Dishwashing Before She Quits

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Katharine McAleer's ambition to become New England's first feminine tree sitting champion was blasted today by police who ordered her down from a tree on Parker Hill, Roxbury, after 27 hours.

Katharine, 14, was sitting pretty and escaping the family dishwashing when police dislodged her because her stunt was causing too much interest in the neighborhood.

The arrest and prosecution of parents who permit their children to imitate in tree sitting endurance contests was promised by officials of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children today.

Dr. George H. Bigelow, state health commissioner, also issued a statement warning parents to allowing "senseless fad that endangers the health and safety of children."

After talking with the parents of Katherine, agents of the M. S. P. C. C. departed with the satisfaction of seeing one girl came down from her perch on Parker Hill.

It developed that the girl was ducking the dishpan and harboring a desire to keep her hand lily white for a movie job, when the arm of the law was stretched forth.

"I should think it would be a lot easier work to wash and wipe

Simonini Story Laying Providence Shortage to Dead Friend Is Being Probed

Providence, July 22 (INS)—Investigation of the self-confessed defalcations totalling $246,000 from the National Bank of Commerce by Peter A. Simonini, bookkeeper, took a new and startling turn today when federal officials admitted they were attempting to learn whether the money was used to finance liquor smuggling activities of a group of well-known men.

Officials made the admission after Federal Attorney Henry F. Ross announced he was not satisfied with Simonini's story, although partly confirmed, and the arrival here of Chief Investigator J. A. Genus of the Department of Justice of Washington.

BLAMED DEAD MAN

Meanwhile, Simonini failed to appear today before a Federal commission or to answer charges of making false entries. Preliminary examination was waived, a probable guilt plea was entered and the case was referred to the Grand Jury.

When the alleged defalcations were discovered by federal bank examiners, Simonini was said by authorities to have confessed he had paid an overdraft to a local business man five years ago, that the man failed to pay, threatened the bookkeeper with exposure and continued to collect on overdrafts.

The business man is now dead, but Simonini's story was confirmed in part by his stenographer, who said she repeatedly saw her employer talking in private with the bank bookkeeper.

However, federal officials today held they were looking into the possibility that the money was used to finance rum running, that the large bank unwittingly financed the landing of rum cargoes from vessels off "rum row."

PROBE SOCIAL LIFE

Where an active group of Rhode Island rum smugglers got funds to purchase speedboats, maintain them and pay for the liquor cargoes has always been a mystery to Federal and State authorities.

Simonini, who has stuck to his story of befriending a man and then being "double-crossed," has been aiding the bank in untangling its accounts. He said repeatedly that he never profited a cent by cashing the overdrafts.

Federal Attorney Ross declared flatly today he did not believe this statement and that Chief Investigator Genus was devoting much time to looking into Simonini's social life during the past five years.

ASK PADLOCK ON LOWELL CLUB

A padlock petition asking that the Club des Citoyens-Americains in Middle st., Lowell, be closed for a year as a common liquor nuisance was filed in Federal Court today by Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone.

This is the second padlock injunction pending against Lowell organizations, the other having been filed yesterday by Stone against the Eagles.

The new petition specifies the second floor of the club building. Joseph H. Paquin, president; James R. Lavalle, treasurer, and Edward J. Lafontaine, steward, are named. The last named was fined $500 yesterday and given a suspended sentence of a year in Federal Court on liquor charges.

HEAVY STORMS HIT SHAMROCK

London, July 22 (INS)—Battling heavy storms, Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's America Cup yacht, was making fair progress today, it was revealed in a wireless message from the steam yacht Erin, accompanying the challenger across the Atlantic.

The Lizard is at the extreme southwesterly tip of England. The message alleviated anxiety which followed reports that the Shamrock had met with a "serious mishap" on the journey.

City Council and Garrett

No Reward, But a Political Debate

The Boston City Council refuses to offer a $500 reward for the capture of Oliver B. Garrett, whose alleged reign of graft and corruption brought the Boston Police Department into public scandal and whose flight from trial and continued freedom have cast a cloud of suspicion over the entire force.

It is not necessary to restate the common suspicion that his continued freedom is an asset to substantial politicians who otherwise might be exposed in the ramifications of corruption which trickled through and out of the Department.

Nor is the political ambition of District Attorney Foley or of Senator Mulhern an issue for Council to debate or to permit to interfere with the transaction of its proper functions.

It is unfortunate that the Council could not anticipate the applause its membership would have received from the public had the $500 proposal been unanimously adopted, with no need for debate. And the addition of a statement of regret that the Council was limited to that amount by the terms of the proposal would have been a ten-strike!

The Council is the agency through which the overwhelming will of the people could have been expressed in this notorious and smelly Garrett matter. The reward is important, not in its amount, but in that it typifies the desire of the public to revive decency in their civic affairs and not to see common justice arrogantly flaunted by those who were sworn to maintain it with absolute impartiality. The Boston Evening American will be happy to pay its offered reward of $5000 in the Garrett case. Presumably, the missing ex-raider is flattered by this amount on his head, even though he for years dealt in big figures himself. So the amount that Council may add is in itself not so important.

In arguing against the injection of politics in the matter, the Council now has placed itself in the unenviable light of itself playing politics.

We do not like to see the Council, representing as it does a city with brilliant traditions running back through many generations, place a smudge permanently upon its record. In the light of its fuller judgment the Council can be expected to adjust this matter when it meets again.

Hub Jaywalkers Face Arrest, Police Warn

Police today launched a war on cruising taxicabs as one of the chief obstacles to the complete success of the new traffic signal lights.

Court action or suspension of licenses may be resorted to, it was said unofficially, as investigators under the command of Deputy Superintendent Thomas F. Goode, started out to study the situation.

Cruising cabs on the first day of the operation of the signals slowed up the movement of traffic noticeably, it was reported.

CHANGE LIGHTS' TIME.

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley issued an appeal to "the walking public, both old and young," to obey the new lights—in order to assure the success of the system and for their own protection.

Three slight changes in the timing of the lights along Washington st., from Bedford to School st., at Washington st. and Temple pl. and at Beacon and Tremont sts., were made.

The changes were resigned to speed up traffic slightly by sending it along in smaller "blocks." The turning time for cars entering Washington st. from Temple pl. was cut from 20 seconds to four seconds.

While Supt. Crowley would make

Sailor Is Mangled by Whirling Propeller

Thomas F. O'Connell, 30, a U. S. navy sailor, attached to the Naval Air Station at Squantum, received injuries that may cause his death today, when he was hit by a fast-whirling propeller of a seaplane at Squantum.

O'Connell sustained a compound fracture of the skull, severe cuts over his entire body and possible serious internal injuries. Doctors at the Quincy city hospital said it was doubtful if O'Connell could survive his injuries.

Lieut. Joseph Lynch, in command of the naval air station, said shortly after the accident a thorough investigation would be made. He said he could not understand how O'Connell happened to come in contact with the propeller, unless the nose of the seaplane tipped as it was being launched.

According to Lieut. Lynch, O'Connell, with other sailors, was running the seaplane down the runway to the water when the accident occurred. It was said O'Connell may have accidentally stepped upon one of the pontoons as the ship was going down the runway.

O'Connell's parents live on Acorn st., Cambridge.

HOOVER SIGNS NAVAL PACT PLEDGING FAITH OF U. S. IN PEACE

'SUPPORTED BY BOTH PARTIES'

'Dismisses All Notion of Americans Planning Aggression on Imperialism'

Washington, July 22—President Hoover today said the London naval treaty ratified, yesterday, would secure the full defense of the United States and would dismiss from the minds of the world any idea that this country aimed for imperialistic exploitation.

President Hoover signed the treaty late today in the east room of the White House.

"WILL SECURE U. S."

"It is a matter of satisfaction that this great accomplishment in international relations has at all steps been given united support of both our political parties," the President said.

"With the ratification by the other governments the treaty will translate an emotion in the hearts of millions of men and women into a practical fact of government and international relations.

"It will renew again the faith of the world in the moral forces of goodwill and patient negotiation as against the blind forces of suspicion and competitive armament. It will secure the full defense of the United States. It will mark a further long step toward lifting the burden of militarism from the backs of mankind and to speed the march forward of world peace. It will lay the foundation upon which further constructive reduction in world arms may be accomplished.

"We should by this act of willingness to join with others in limiting armament, have dismissed from the mind of the world any notion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial power or exploitation of foreign nations."

Having ratified the treaty by a vote of 58 to 9, the Senate, after 10 months of almost continual session, joined the House on vacation to last until the 71st Congress reconvenes for the short session in December.

WILL OPPOSE MARVIN

The Senate adjourned, with Democratic spokesmen threatening fights in December against presidential appointments to both the power commission and the newly reorganized tariff commission.

Sen. Pat Harrison (D.) of Mississippi took a parting shot at the administration over the president's failure to name the tariff commissioners while the Senate was in session. He announced that every recess appointee would be "scrutinized from the day he was 21" and that if either Chairman Edgar B. Brossard of Utah or Thomas O. Marvin of Massachusetts were reappointed, there would be a bitter battle against their confirmation in the fall. He termed both men the "special advocates of special interests."

The final vote for ratification of the treaty was:

GIRL NABBED IN BABY RING

St. Hyacinthe, Que., July 22 (AP)—One woman was under arrest today and provincial detectives were trying to round up other members of a ring alleged to have made a business of abandoning unwanted babies for $50 a child.

The organization is believed by officials to have its headquarters in Montreal, and its operatives to have been depositing the unwanted children on doorsteps within a hundred-mile radius. Twenty babies have been abandonted in Three Rivers, four in Granby and nine in St. Hyacinthe since April 18.

Four of the babies found in St. Hyacinthe have been identified by young women employed in a maternity home in Montreal as having come from that institution. The babies, police say, are taken from Montreal at night in automobiles and left in small villages on private doorsteps and at the portals of charitable institutions.

Generally the babies have been swathed in flannelette nightgowns and covered with a uniform square of sateen. One infant, found here on July 11, died after it was found on the doorstep of an orphanage.

Hub Jaywalkers Face Fine; War on Taxis

no threat to arrest "jaywalkers," the superintendent did cite the rules and regulations in effect on Boston's streets, which apparently prescribe a fine not exceeding $20.

He said he was looking into the matter, having been informed that a court decision was against the arrest of careless pedestrians. For the present he believes the public should be given a fair chance to become familiar with the lights, but car drivers will be expected to do so with dispatch.

PEDESTRIANS AT FAULT

Policemen at traffic points in the downtown area reported improvement today, although pedestrians were still failing to wait their trick across the street when the light changed to green, therefore slowing up the movement of vehicles.

According to court decisions in many states, if a pedestrian is crossing the street when the light changes, he has the right-of-way, but starting after the signal has changed seems to be a common fault here.

"The new traffic lights will no doubt be confusing to pedestrians, especially women, until they become more familiar with the manner in which the signals are being manipulated," said Supt. Crowley.

DANGER BETWEEN SIGNALS

"I would suggest to all pedestrians that particular care be taken to cross streets at regular crosswalks or at intersections where traffic is controlled by stop and go signals, and to be especially careful in crossing streets where no regular crosswalks exist or between signals.

"The only time when pedestrians are permitted to cross streets where stop and go signals are located is when the light shows RED AND YELLOW.

"Pedestrians should remember they are not entitled to cross the streets at any place they may desire, but only at regular crosswalks and at intersections where traffic is controlled by signals or by police.

"As for automobile drivers, they should be familiar with the regulations. If not, they are duty bound to educate themselves to the manner in which they must drive while approaching new stop and go signals."

MAY LIST JAYWALKERS

Superintendent Crowley quoted the laws referred to above and again reminded that penalties include a fine of $20.

Asked if police would take the names of "jaywalkers," he replied:

"I would rather not discuss that at present. The public is entitled to consideration. Until they have had a reasonable time in which to familiarize themselves with the new signals, I prefer not to go into details as to ways and means that may be taken to enforce the law."

Automobile traffic was exceptionally light today, and this may account in part, police admitted, for the smooth working of the new system at virtually all points.

Pedestrians made complaints to officers at two places, Washington and Court and Washington and Franklin sts., saying they did not have time enough to cross. These complaints were sent immediately to headquarters.

Officials believe it may be necessary to make some regulation with regard to big trucks and buses parking in narrow streets.

Uses Olive Oil to Make Auto Go

Madrid, July 22 (AP)—Manuel Pinel, a member of the Seville Municipal Council, today motored from that city to Madrid using olive oil as the only lubricant of his car. The experimenter said he consumed about a quart of oil with excellent results. Olive producers have asked the government to support experiments which they hope will result in extensive use of olive oil for lubrication.

MILLIONS PAID OFFICIALS OF BETHLEHEM

Vice-Presidents as Well as Grace Got Steel Corporation Bonuses

Youngstown, O., July 22 (AP)—Attorneys for Cyrus S. Eaton, waging a court battle against the billion-dollar merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation, completed their probe of Bethlehem bonuses today.

Then they started into the terms of the merger and the buying of stock to be voted for the merger.

Following the promise of President Eugene G. Grace of Bethlehem, defense attorneys furnished figures on the bonuses paid to Bethlehem vice-presidents during 1929 and the first half of 1930. The figures were introduced into evidence by the Eaton attorneys.

Grace testified yesterday his own bonus in 1929 was $1,623,753 and for the first half of 1930, $701,968. The bonuses paid to vice-presidents for the same periods were:

	First half 1929	1930
Q. Brent	$378,664	$165,701
C. A. Buck	378,664	163,701
J. M. Gross	110,077	47,588
H. E. Lewis	378,784	61,146
R. E. McMath	134,558	58,162
J. H. Ward	84,305	23,477

Lewis retired February 28, this year. Other officers who shared in the Bethlehem bonus plan received a total of $370,548 for 1929.

The Eaton attorneys called George May, Southport, Ct., senior partner in Price, Waterhouse Co. of New York, to the stand when court opened. He was dismissed a few minutes later to give him a chance to produce the source material of the audit report which was prepared by his firm and used as a basis of negotiations for the Youngstown-Bethlehem deal.

R. E. McMath, financial vice-president and secretary of Bethlehem, then went to the stand as a "hostile" witness for the plaintiffs.

MYSTERY VEILS AIR CRASH

Meopham, Kent, Eng., July 22 (AP)—A bride of a few months is among those who have claimed bodies of victims of yesterday's mysterious airplane tragedy.

Mrs. Henderson, young wife of Lieut.-Col. George L. P. Henderson, the pilot, flew to Croydon from Le Touquet with her husband. He returned to France to bring others to Croydon and she awaited him in London. On learning that he was dead she collapsed.

The cause of the accident remained a mystery today.

GARRETT MISSING 30 DAYS!

SPURS GARRETT HUNT DESPITE $500 DEFEAT

The City Council's refusal to offer a reward of $500 for the capture of Oliver B. Garrett spurred District Attorney William J. Foley today to put to work every resource at his command to track the fugitive ex-policeman.

Foley expressed himself as keenly disappointed at the action of the councillors, several of whom made a political football of the issue, dragging the coming election for district attorney and the last mayoral campaign into their debate, with an accompaniment of verbal brickbats.

"I did what I thought was my duty," said Foley today. "I felt that the offer of an additional reward would be of some help in getting clues that might lead to Garrett's arrest.

"I suppose the members of the city council feel they were doing their duty but I certainly disagree with them.

"Reward or no reward, I am going to continue the search with every means at my command."

Because of mounting city expenses, Mayor Curley felt compelled yesterday to reject a request for $30,500 for the Garrett hunt in the county budget, but he allowed $20,000.

RESCUE FORTY MISSIONARIES IN CHINA WAR

36 From America Are Among Those Saved by the U. S. and British Consuls

London, July 22 (AP)—Forty American and British missionaries long stranded in the Chinese war area have been reached by rescuers 100 miles up the Min river, it was announced officially today.

American and British consuls headed the rescue party and found the missionaries after making the perilous journey in a launch. The dispatch said 36 of the missionaries were Americans.

A message from Peking on July 18 said that John J. Muccio, acting United States consul at Foochow, had notified the legation he was leaving for Yen-Ping-Fu.

The churchmen were marooned in an area controlled by Lung Sing-Pang, rebel general then menacing Foochow. Both sides in the war promised the consul safe conduct through the firing lines.

The fate of four American missionaries, trapped in the rebel-held city of Pochow during its recent bombardment by Nationalist forces, occupied the attention of United States consular authorities in Shanghai today.

The missionaries, Miss Olive Riddell, Dr. Mary Hing and the Rev. and Mr. G. W. Strother of the Southern Baptist Mission with headquarters at Richmond, Va., were caught in Pochow when rebellious northerners occupied it prior to the recent outbreak of civil war.

Two months ago Nationalists besieged the city with a small force, expecting the rebels to surrender because of a food shortage. When the northerners failed to capitulate within the desired time Nationalists began an artillery bombardment.

NAME RUSSIAN POLICE IN QUIZ

New York, July 22 (AP)—The Ogpu, secret political police of the Soviet government, was mentioned in testimony today before the special Congressional committee investigating the Communist activities in the United States.

The witness was Johan Ohsol, only director of the Amtorg Trading Corporation and an American citizen. He said he had heard of the Ogpu but didn't know what it was. He named a secret police force and superseded the old Cheka. He said that he never had been a delegate from the United States, and knew of no one connected with it, although he had made business visits to Russia every two years since 1924.

Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., chairman of the committee, interrupted to remind the witness that he was under oath. Ohsol continued to testify that he was not a Communist and had never had relations with Communists.

Billie Burke Decries Silly Divorces

Los Angeles, July 22—Decrying divorces that result from petty bickerings, Billie Burke, former stage and screen star and wife of Flo Ziegfeld, declared in an interview yesterday that any woman not repulsive should be able to hold a husband.

"Any woman who isn't utterly repulsive and has a share of brains can make a success of marriage and hold her husband in the face of all the competition in the world, if she hasn't married a brainless fool, and I didn't.

"There are altogether too many silly divorces these days. A wife finds a flaw or two in her husband, or the husband finds a flaw or two in his wife and the divorcee acts as if he or she was a Christopher Columbus and had found something that was going to stagger humanity," she stated.

MAYOR CURLEY SCORES BOSTON'S 'LAND-TAKING RACKETEERS'

THREATENS TO HALT PUBLIC PROJECTS

Cites Huge Sums "Milked" From the City by the Jury Awards in Price Disputes

Declaring that jury awards in cases of land taking by the city will cost approximately $250,000 more than officials feel the property is worth, Mayor Curley today threatened to stop public improvements if this form of "racketeering," as he termed it, does not stop.

The mayor declared that unless property owners are more reasonable there must be an immediate letup in city improvements.

Jury awards in the taking of land for a fire station in Bowdoin sq., for four parcels of land in Exchange st., and for the land numbered 1 to 6 Dock sq. are unsatisfactory to city officials, he said.

The award for the land in Bowdoin sq. was $348,637.50. The city offered $300,000 for that property, although, he said, it was believed that even that amount was excessive.

The city awarded damages of $263,200 to the owners of the Dock sq. property. Not satisfied with this amount, suit for $450,000 was brought and the jury awarded damages of $327,270. The mayor declared this was $63,000 in excess of the value placed on the property by the Boston Finance Commission.

"In many cases advocates of public improvements are trying to unload unprofitable property on the city at a cost far in excess of its real value. This form of racketeering must stop," the mayor reiterated.

"It is time to stop public improvements until such time as property owners display a more reasonable and equitable attitude.

"In the future it may be necessary to get gentlemen's agreements regarding a fair price for their land from property owners before any public improvements are made. Now improvements are made and then the owners go into court and get excessive prices for their property. This racket must stop at once."

200 Is Country's Death Toll in Record Heat

Taking a toll of approximately 200 lives, the unprecedented nation-wide heat wave began receding today.

Drouth, however, continued as a serious menace to the country despite relief showers in many sections.

Dry records of 40 years' standing have been broken and the water shortage is critical at many points, the United States weather bureau at Washington revealed.

In the wake of four days of record heat about 50 were dead because of high temperatures and about 150 from drowning among the millions who sought to escape the heat by bathing.

The Massachusetts fatality list included four from heat and two from lightning in last night's storm.

New thunder storms for Boston tonight, following this afternoon's shower, were predicted in the local weather bureau forecast which holds out the promise of continued cool weather tonight and tomorrow.

The storm last night broke the heat in Boston and cloudy skies and a northwest breeze kept the mercury down today.

New York, where it was 99 yesterday, reported cloudy skies and the promise of showers today. The temperature ran considerably below yesterday's figures.

The Greater Boston thunder and lightning storm, booming over the North and South Shores, was the forerunner of the general breaking up of the nationwide heat wave.

THOMPSON IS QUITE AT HOME IN SALEM JAIL

Sleeps Well, Eats Heartily and Smokes as He Awaits His Fate in Slaying

Bernard Thompson of Dorchester, held for the slaying of his aunt, Mrs. K. Edith (Thompson) Wight, passed a quiet night in Salem jail, Sheriff Arthur G. Wells said today.

He said Thompson, awaiting action of the Essex County grand jury on a first degree murder charge, slept well his first night in jail and is eating heartily.

Thompson readily adapted himself to the routine in his cell, which does not permit any outdoor exercise, and is busying himself in reading the newspapers and smoking.

This morning he was up at 5:30 with the other inmates, consumed his breakfast with apparent relish, and turned to the newspapers.

A close guard is being maintained over the prisoner to prevent any attempt at self-destruction.

Since his surrender in New Haven, Ct., and his declared confession to the murder of his aunt, Thompson has talked constantly of escaping the electric chair.

This was principally what led his jailers to keep the closest watch on his cell following arraignment in Saugus court for the killing.

It was hinted in district court yesterday that an insanity plea would form the basis for young Thompson's defense. He was represented by Judge William H. Fay of Peabody and Atty. Charles E. Flynn of Saugus. Judge Ludden found probable cause and directed that he be held for the grand jury session in September.

In the meantime he will be examined by State insanity experts with representatives of the defense counsel present.

He asked guards at Salem jail before and after his arraignment what they thought of his chances to "beat the chair."

Oil Stock First to Go on Warner's Grill

stock duly registered by the Department of Public Utilities.

According to the widow, a resident of Swansea, Mass., who is now near destitution, she first paid out $1000 in cash for stock in the Holland Far East Tea, Coffee and Cocoa Corporation.

She charged the salesmen represented to her she could get her money back any time she wished, as the company had put aside a large surplus fund for that specific purpose. She was also assured of an immediate profit of at least 8 per cent on her investment and of much greater profit within a year of her investment.

Assured by these statements, the widow then turned over $1000 worth of stock in the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and a $1000 United Kingdom of Great Britain bond for more Holland stock. The salesmen's representations have been repudiated by officials of the company.

FACES EXTRADITION

It was also announced by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner that he was ready to act with Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley in extraditing George F. Redmond, former Boston broker, from New York to stand trial on state charges growing out of the $12,000,000 collapse of his "bucket shop" that numbered 20,000 victims.

When Foley announced through the Evening American Monday that he was ready to force Redmond to trial, it was hinted that a trial on the state charges might reveal the identity of several influential and wealthy Bostonians involved in the Redmond case.

Redmond was released last December from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta after serving five years for using the mails to defraud.

Warner said that as soon as Dist.-Atty. Foley requests the extradition of Redmond the necessary papers will be drawn, presented to Governor Frank G. Allen for his signature and sent to New York.

Asst. Dist.-Atty. William Sullivan, in charge of the stock fraud inquiry for the county prosecutor, said he expected Foley to ask for the extradition papers today.

Private detectives, state police and Police Inspector John Mitchell, of the Boston department, are tracing salesmen of the Holland tea corporation against whom charges of misrepresentation have been made.

Complaints against the salesmen of the Holland stock continue to come to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau from all parts of New England. Although only those originating in Massachusetts were turned over to the attorney-general for official action, many gave interesting sidelights on the "high pressure" system employed by the glib pedlars.

George E. Rix, executive secretary of the Manchester, Conn., Chamber of Commerce, reported that a crew of the Holland salesmen had operated in that section.

In the follow-up campaign after a pound of coffee had been sent along with one share for $1, the prospect, according to Rix, he was told that the owner of one share was entitled to purchase from one to ten blocks of stock at $300 per block. He stated that, according to the salesmen, the stock guaranteed 8 p. c. and had paid 13 p. c. in 1928.

PAID $1200

Rix also stated that he knew of one Holland stock salesmen who exhibited what purported to be two checks, one for $1000 and the other for $2000 from former Gov. Marcus Holcomb of Connecticut.

Raymond L. Kendall, headmaster of the Franklin, N. H., high school, stated that a purported salesman of the Holland stock had represented that the company was earning large profits, that it was selling its products to practically every large chain store company in the country, naming specifically the Atlantic and Pacific stores, and that a huge expansion plan was being completed.

Mrs. Mary S. Howe, of South Manchester, Conn., complained that she had bought $1200 worth of stock on the misrepresentation that it was going on the New York Stock Exchange immediately at a marked advance.

Frank Kinnie, of Concord, Mass., said he had purchased 150 shares of stock after J. Pinkney, a salesman, told him he could get his money back "over night" if he wanted it, and that the stock was going on the stock exchanges immediately. After this assurance from Pinkney, Kinnie said, a second salesman, who gave his name as Mendelson, found it easy to sell him 150 additional shares.

"GOLDEN" PROMISES

Kinnie's case was also put up to officials of the Holland company by the Boston Better Business Bureau. In a reply, the company stated:

"Of course, we never authorize any of our salesmen to make any misrepresentations in connection with the sale of securities, and you will agree that we certainly could not repurchase stock from stockholders of our company. As neither of these salesmen are now in our employ we cannot, of course, until we first talk to them, determine what statements were made to Mr. Kinnie."

James E. Marchant, of Gloucester, who has a mother and sister dependant on him, sank $1500 in Holland stock on representations that the stock was soon going on the stock exchange at a big increase.

Hoyt D. Foster, instructor of science at Hebron Academy, Hebron, Maine, described himself as "another person unfortunate enough to be a victim of high pressure salesmen."

Mrs. William H. Gere, of 148 South st., Northampton, Mass., complained that she and her husband invested $9150 in Holland stock through golden promises made by salesmen.

Mrs. Isabelle Michie, of Biddeford, Me., reported that she had purchased Holland stock on the promise that she could get "dollar for dollar" for her stock at anytime. She tried to get her money back and, of course, failed.

The Providence, R. I., Better Business Bureau reported that last February, Mrs. Gladys Stedman of Block Island, received a telephone call from a man giving the name of a high official of the Holland company. The caller said the company was issuing rights to stockholders and that they were "entitled to subscribe to a certain number of shares." Mrs. Stedman also declared the supposed official represented the stock as selling at $1.60 a share at the time.

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. Write to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, giving all the circumstances. Such information will be held confidential.

Goldilocks Hunted in Saugus '3 Bear' Story

The "Three Bears" story has just been re-enacted in Saugus and the police are looking for Goldilocks. Also for Goldilocks' boy friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wentworth returned to their home at 35 Bailey ave. from a two weeks' vacation to find that beds had been slept in, dishes had been used and piled up. All available food in the house had been eaten and the pantry stocked with fresh bread and cake.

Sprinklings of powder before a dresser mirror indicated that one of the interlopers had been feminine. The fact that the toys of the children had been played with indicated that they had been comparatively youthful.

Aside from the fact that the children's banks had been broken and looted and that milk had been consistently stolen from neighbors' porches, nothing of value seems to have been taken.

V-5 ON WAY TO PROVINCETOWN

Portsmouth, N. H., July 22 (AP)—The submarine V-5, the latest addition to the United States Navy's undersea fleet and one of the largest in the world, today left the Portsmouth Navy Yard for her builder's trials off Provincetown, Mass. She has a crew of about 85 officers and men.

While en route to Provincetown the V-5 engaged in submerging tests between the Isle of Shoals and Rye Beach off the New Hampshire coast. She will put into Provincetown tonight.

After trials over the submarine course in Massachusetts bay Wednesday and Thursday, the craft will return to Boston for ammunition supplies. She will then return here for provisions, after which she will go to Annapolis for inspection by Navy officials and Congressmen. She will then leave for a cruise in South American waters.

Nebraska Norris Issue No Longer Threat to Senator

Lincoln, Neb., July 22 (AP)—The "W" which serves as a nomenclatural fulcrum between "George" and "Norris," and which has caused considerable political uneasiness in Nebraska, appeared today to have passed definitely as an issue.

George W. Norris, senior Senator from Nebraska, who seeks renomination and re-election, is "George William Norris" when the name is spelled out.

George W. Norris, Broken Bow grocer, who sought to oppose Senator Norris for the Republican nomination, but whose filing for a place on the ballot was ruled out by the State Supreme Court, is "George Winifred Norris."

Each "George W. Norris" has insisted upon that form for his name; Senator Norris because it is the way in which he always is spoken of; the grocer because he does not care much for his middle name which is "Winifred." He said he discarded the middle name many years ago because it sounded "too girlish."

The Broken Bow grocer arrived in Lincoln last night after Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota had adjourned his investigation into the Nebraska situation. Norris announced he was definitely out of the competition by reason of the Supreme Court's ruling and because he lacked funds with which to enter the race as an independent.

Air Mail Flier Is Killed in Crash

COURT HOLDS 4 IN FORGERIES

Lawrence, July 22—Described by police as a Chicago racketeer, John Leonard was held for the grand jury in $51,000 by Judge Fred Chandler in district court today after pleading not guilty to nine charges of larceny and as many counts of conspiracy to utter false checks.

Edward and Thomas McNally, brothers, and Arthur J. Martin, all Lawrence taxicab operators, were held on similar charges in $1000 to $4000.

According to police, Leonard won the confidence of wealthy residents of Lawrence and by sales of ginger ale in case lots obtained checks from which he copied signatures in forgeries for amounts ranging from $500 to $1200, then passed the checks on banks through his acquaintanceship with the taxi operators.

It is alleged Leonard obtained more than $10,000 in this way.

He Blames Prohibition for Business Depression

Editor Boston American:

I see by the papers that a "wet-to-be" politician, by the name of Joseph Walker, is trying to make a "would-be" politician senator (Mr. Butler). That alone is laughable; but the reason he gives! That Mr. Butler will improve business conditions.

Everyone knows that it is prohibition that makes business bad. At least a billion dollars is the estimate that it costs all the governmental agencies in loss of revenue. Add to this the cost in crime as a result of prohibition.

Now, if Mr. Butler can show the public how he (the great man?) is going to give the people all the above money (in reduction of taxes, lower cost of living and employment) in spite of prohibition, why he will win in a walk-over. If he gets the nomination we will surely have a Democratic senator. So, the only alternative is to vote for Draper. BENJ. DANIELS.

Boston Elks Laud American Editorial

Editor Boston American:

I have the pleasure to inform you that at a meeting of Boston Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, held Friday evening, July 18, 1930, it was unanimously voted that the secretary, under seal of the lodge, send a letter expressing its thanks to the Boston Evening American for their kindly and timely editorial which appeared in the issue of July 15, relative to the Elks.

Needless to add the officers and members of Boston Lodge are deeply appreciative of the generous and co-operative spirit which prompted the action of the Boston Evening American, and the said action further emphasizes in their minds the broad humanitarian outlook that characterizes your newspaper in its endeavor to to promote the happiness, prosperity and welfare of this community.

With the best wishes of the Elks for continued success,

JOHN W. CUSSEN,
Exalted Ruler.

Attest: P. F. McCarron, Secretary, Boston Lodge, No. 10, B. P. O. E.

Confidence of People Means Business Success

Editor Boston American:

Your paper lately has taken to discussing business. Your letter column indicates this. It is well to have many lights thrown upon conducting business.

There is this fact to think of, that 30 per cent of any business is knowing the business, 70 per cent is in conducting the business in harmony with the environment in which it is conducted.

We must hold the confidence of the people. To hold this view is to hold what invariably helps along a successful business. Get the confidence of those concerns with which you do business.

There is so much twaddle sprung upon business men at times that I think what I have said above means more than what is often given in colleges of business administration. B. G. GEER.

Finds Blankets Today Better Than Those of Old Times

Editor Boston American:

Every mother should just glance at the old-fashioned christening blanket that once held the delicate form of Samuel Adams, when he received baptism at the Old South Meeting House in 1722. This blanket has descended through six generations.

It is being exhibited at the Museum of Fine Arts during the Tercentenary period.

While this is a good relic of the past, it cannot compare with the blankets that adorn beautiful babes of this generation.

We have improved since those days, in shape, color, texture, and style of the blankets that wind around the fragile forms of the modern child, even in all homes. But just take a look at that blanket. You may thank your luckiy stars that your blanket was not as coarse as that.

Urges Cutting Sale of Revolvers to Men

Editor Boston American:

An item of news in your paper about the increase in the sale of revolvers interested me because you stated that three times as many revolvers were sold in the last seven months of this year as in the period preceeding.

Then another letter in your paper called attention to young women carrying revolvers for self protection this is not premature. I strongly advised this. Cut down materially on the sale of revolvers to men. Some men have too many revolvers within reach. Stop selling them to men.

Just think, tax collections on such weapons increased from $94,000 to $272,555 during the past 12 months. N. H. SIEGEL.

Personal Side Important in Business Life

Editor Boston American:

Several times, I have noticed in your letter column, reference to young men of today, preparing for business, absorbing all the best methods of carrying on big business.

When William Butterworth, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, spoke in Boston some time last year, he attributed success in business to modesty, genuine knowledge and creative thought. He sounded these notes often in his address in this city.

He says concerning life, after coming out of college:

"Don't magnify your superiority. Success in business depends on something more than mere technical knowledge or ability. The personal side is very important. Above all, don't be snobbish towards your fellow beings."

I think this advice most sensible and I offer it to your readers coming as it does from a most accomplished teacher.

HENRY T. TITCOMB.

Says Earplugs Needed to Cut Out Noise

Editor Boston American:

Do you know what citizens of Boston need? They need plugs for their ears, as they go through the different sections of this city. There is getting to be a terrific din on Washington st. going towards the North Station. Why not try using ear plugs which are becoming more popular in some parts of New York city, down on the North river side?

When a lot of autos get congested in Bromfield st. they begin sounding horns as a sort of warning to traffic officers that waiting for the signal to start has put a dent in patience. But the pedestrians suffer from this din of sounds. I think musical horns should be the law. Bury this old horn noise. Give three notes of music and you will not injure the tympanum of the ear.

Says Care by Drivers Will Curb Accidents

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial in today's American "Automobile Killers" was fine. Please keep up the good work of warning people to drive carefully. I have done considerable driving during the last ten years without any accident whatever, but I have seen enough careless driving to know that the fools who have license to drive are not all dead yet.

JOHN E. NELSON.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor, Boston American:

If you want to get a youthful touch of democracy in Boston, watch the urchins in the Frog Pond on Boston Common these hot days!

Here is the pool of democracy. Don't shut that water off. Give these little tots all the pleasure they are reaping there in that historic spot.

I have helped them across Beacon st. from Joy st. and heard their chatter. They have few pleasures in the shape of playing. But this pool of democracy, where all nations seem to spring into the water, is a true League of Nations or World Court.

Just sit down in front of that pool and watch the youngsters. Don't shut them off from this enjoyment, as it is intended!

U. S. DIPLOMAT SEEKS DIVORCE

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Capt. Christian Gross, secretary of the American legation in Berne, Switzerland, has filed two suits, one for divorce, against Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor of the Philippines, Attorney Robert E. Cantwell, Jr., counsel for Gross, disclosed last night.

Capt. Gross, prominent polo player, who was decorated by eight nations for valor in the World War, charged desertion in his divorce bill and named as a co-respondent a "Spaniard named Alberti," who promised, Gross cited, to put his wife in grand opera within six months.

The second suit is directed toward clearing up the title to an $830,000 trust fund Gross says he established for himself several years ago.

Seven Experts Strive to Find Who's Who of Two Babies

Chicago, July 22 (INS)—Seven specialists in the world of science were to meet in conference today to try to work out a method by which two sets of distracted parents can distinguish the infants Bamberger and Watkins.

The squad of experts who will perform tests on the parents and babies included an anthropologist, a dermatologist, a pathologist, two crime detectors, an obstetrician and an opthalmologist. They admit solution of the problem which has thrown Englewood Hospital into an excited turmoil, will be extremely difficult because there is no precedent to follow.

There are, according to the experts, minute similarities in fingerprint convolutions and hair thicknesses which may give evidence as to which infant belongs to Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins and which to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger.

Both infants were born on the same afternoon in the same department of Englewood Hospital and, through some error the baby thought to belong to the Watkins family was affixed with a tag "Bamberger" and the Bamberger child was found to bear a tag labelled "Watkins."

Fall From Montreal Train Kills Man

Bennington, Vt., July 22 (AP)—A man believed by police to be Charles Houssey of Jersey City died at the Putnam Memorial Hospital here today of injuries probably received in a fall from a Montreal-New York train early today. He was found beside the railroad tracks near South Shaftsbury suffering from severe cuts and a probable fracture of the skull.

RUNYON SAYS

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

New York, July 22—Scattered from 49th to 50th st., on the east side of Broadway, between the hours of 8 p. m. and 5 a. m. these summer nights, you find the hot sports of the community. (Well, at least they are h ' from the weather just now.)

The short stretch of the big white line described above is a sort of sporting Rialto. There at some time during the night you see many well known figures of the turf, and ring, and green cloth. In that brief patch of Manhattan Island, the betting odds on most big sport events are fixed. That's where "the boys" hang out.

They stand around in little groups, or walk up and down the street in pairs, discussing this and that. Their conversation just now has mainly to do with the way the horses ran that day, or with the events of the ring or on the baseball field. You can hear many an interesting argument, if you are permitted to listen in.

Occasionally a cop comes drifting along, remarking perfunctorily, "break it up, boys," though I never could see why the citizens shouldn't be permitted to do a little off-hand standing around whenever and wherever it suits them.

As a matter of fact, this standing around serves the interests of justice, because a man gets too tired standing around to do anything violently illegal.

SCENE OFTEN SHIFTED

It is difficult to explain why a certain set picks any certain neighborhood as a rendezvous. In this particular instance, the late Arnold Rothstein was largely responsible. The late Rothstein seemed to be able to move sporting headquarters around to suit his own convenience and whim.

Once he moved as far north as the Eighties, but suddenly retreated back down to Fiftieth st. He always pitched his camp around an all night restaurant. His selection of a site was generally based upon the quality of the food, and the convenience of the place to himself.

He didn't always care for the proprietor of his headquarters—in fact, as a rule there was generally a feud between them, because the late Rothstein liked to do a lot of "kidding" around the proprietor.

In the past 15 years, or more, he moved "the boys" from Jack's at Sixth ave. and Forty-third, to Child's at Fifty-ninth and Broadway, then on up to Seventy-second and Broadway, and still on to the Eighties, only to take them back again to the region where he finally got the message that took him to his death.

And there the sporting Rialto has remained, probably for the longest period since the sports began edging north out of the Thirties years and years ago. Of late there has been a movement on past Rothstein's farthest north — clear up to Ninety-Sixth and Broadway, in fact, but the main body still rests between Forty-Ninth and Fiftieth.

"OPEN-AIR" OFFICE

On that short beat the late Rothstein used to transact much of his business. When he wanted to confer with a man, he would tell that man up and down the east side of Broadway between Forty-Ninth and Fiftieth, elbowing through the movie crowds and the pedestrians until the business was completed.

Sometimes he would walk his beat just for exercise, his Rolls-Royce or Minerva idle at the curb, and rarely used. Some of the boys still walk Rothstein's old beat from force of habit.

But when the weather is really steaming, it is pleasanter to stand quietly at Forty-Ninth where a breeze is almost always sweeping between the rivers.

A couple of blocks from this sector is an all-night restaurant where the actors hang out.

A block south is the mustering point of the pugilistic fraternity. "Birds of a feather flock together," runs the old adage.

In the early evening assemblages on the sporting Rialto you are apt to sometimes sense an atmosphere of gloom. "The boys" have just returned from the race track, and may still be suffering from the depression of the day's events.

"How was it?" is the common query.

"No good," is the glum answer, though sometimes it may be "all right."

But by midnight any bad luck of the afternoon has been completely forgotten, and the talk is of the possibilities of the morrow. You can't keep a squirrel on the ground.

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAMS ARE PICKED

Auteuil, France, July 22 (AP)—Big Bill Tilden's sprained ankle was so much improved this afternoon that he played three hard, fast sets with his youthful Davis Cup team-mate, George Martin Lott Jr., and beat him. The scores were 6—3, 6—3, 6—4 and both Americans played as though something vital was at stake on the outcome.

Paris, July 22 (US)—Despite the handicap of a sprained right ankle, which he injured in a practice match yesterday afternoon, Big Bill Tilden, America's famous tennis star, will be one of the four to represent his country in this week-end's challenge round matches against France for the Davis Cup.

This became definite with the announcement by Fitz-Eugene Dixon, America's non-playing captain, that Tilden's ankle had responded to treatment and was much improved.

Dixon said Tilden and George Martin Lott, Jr., of Chicago would play in the singles and Wilmer Allison of San Antonio, Tex., and John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., in the doubles.

Tilden turned his ankle severely while playing in Roland Garros Stadium against Karel Kozeluh, the Czecho-Slovakian professional star, who is coaching the American team. The lanky Philadelphian was returning a lob to Kozeluh when he slipped on the wet court and went sprawling full length.

Tilden's Ankle Improves; Dixon Picks Team

Forty-eight hours of absolute rest and fine medical treatment would give the final decision on Tilden's ability to play against the French, but with the improvement of the injured ankle last night, Dixon made his selection of the American team definite. He said:

"Tilden's ankle is very much better, and we will play him just the same."

Tilden, game as ever, winced under hours of treatment, but tonight stated:

"It's really not serious. I shall be all right tonight."

Tilden's announcement that he had been released from his newspaper writing contract in order to return to the Davis Cup fold and strengthen the American four against the French, came as a pleasant though not unexpected surprise to tennis enthusiasts, but their joy was short-lived when news spread that the lanky Philadelphian had sprained his ankle and might be unable to play in this week-end's matches.

American Prospects of Winning Bright

Despite Bill's ankle injury, American prospects are bright. The return of Tilden leaves Wilmer Allison free to carry the doubles match with John Van Ryn, instead of being thrust into the singles breach. Christian Boussus and Jacques Brugnon are expected to be the French pair, it was tentatively announced last night. Allison and Van Ryn should easily defeat the Gallic combination.

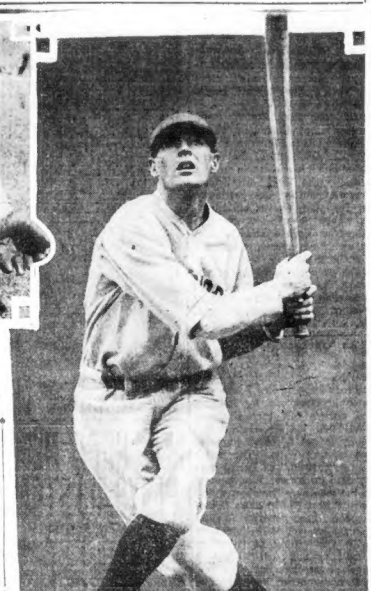
Flowers in Feature

New York, July 22 (AP)—The Queensburg Stadium weekly show tonight will be featured by a ten-round bout between Tommy Grogan, Omaha puncher, and Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro lightweight.

THIS TRIO PLAYED BETTER WHEN THEY SAW "RED"

HARRY HEILMANN, former Detroit star, began to take new life under the direction of Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and is now playing the best game of his long diamond career.

WHEN THE YANKS figured Leon Durocher was done, the Reds grabbed him. While he is not setting the world on fire, Durocher is playing a much better game for the Reds than he ever did for the Yanks. Leon is a hard worker in the field.



BOB MEUSEL, another Yankee star of other days, was let out when he appeared to be slipping. Dan Howley took him, and has made him a star in the National League. Bob seems to have regained his old-time form at bat and in the field.

Wightman Cup Member Eliminated in Tilt

Manchester, July 22 (AP)—Edith Cross of San Francisco, member of the American Wightman Cup tennis team and top seeded player in the Essex Country Club invitation tournament, today was eliminated by Virginia Hilleary of Philadelphia in the third round match, 7—5, 6—3.

Miss Cross, who landed in Boston scarcely 24 hours ago from England, was decidedly off her usual game. Her long sea trip, it appeared, had dulled her usual accuracy and robbed her of much of her court speed.

Miss Hilleary, however, never played better tennis. She displayed an impressive change of pace, and earned her many valuable placements on deep court shots to the line.

Miss Cross entered the second round yesterday on a default, and gained the third round by defeating Fanny Curtis of Boston, 6—0, 6—2.

The other Wightman player fared much better. Saran Palfrey of Brookline advanced into the fourth round by defeating Mrs. E. K. Nash of Boston, 6—0, 6—2, and then vanquishing Ruth Bailey of St. Louis, 6—1, 6—3.

Mary Greef of Kansas City gained the third round by topping Rosamond Newton of Boston, 6—1, 6—1.

Three other seeded players were also in the fourth round with Miss Palfrey and Miss Hilleary. Marjorie Gladman, young California star, gained that bracket by defeating Eleonora Sears, the prominent Boston society sportswoman, who has been runner-up three times in the national championship, by scores of 6-2, 6-0.

Dorothy Weisel of Sacramento, Cal., defeated Virginia Rice of Boston, 6—1, 6—3, for her place in the fourth round, and Marjorie Morrill of Dedham reached that point with a 6—2, 6—3 victory over Edith Sigourney of Boston.

COWDIN DONE WITH POLO

New York, July 22 (AP)—J. Cheever Cowdin, storm center of the American international polo teams, is quitting the game. His decision to abandon polo was revealed in the announcement that his string of polo ponies will be disposed of at public auction August 20.

Cowdin, ranked at eight goals in 1922-23-27-28, made the American team picked to face the British in 1927 and then was dropped in a sudden shakeup.

In 1928 he was selected to play against the Argentines, but was dropped five days before the first game of the series.

At that time Cowdin resigned as honorary treasurer of the United States Polo Association because of "differences of opinion with the policies of the association."

He declined to become a candidate for this year's international team.

Chuck Becka Turns In Another 77

Beverly Country Club, Chicago, July 22 (INS)—Duplicating his score of 77, Chuck Becka, Calumet youngster, today took the lead in the qualifying round of the western amateur tournament here with 154. Art Sweet of Ridgemore was in second place with 78 added to his 79 of yesterday for 157.

Wisconsin May Get Fine Grid Prospect

Chicago, July 22 (INS)—The University of Wisconsin may inherit a candidate of no mean proportions for its football team if "Big Joe" Saltis, Chicago ex-beer baron, keeps his word.

For "Joe," who has the town of Saltisville in Wisconsin named for him, likes the Badger State and intends to have his 17-year-old son educated at its university, according to reports here. He has two other sons, but they are not yet of university age.

Regarding their future, Joe said: "I'm going to send the kids down to Madison, I guess. The oldest boy is 17. I'll give him a course at business college first."

Bunker Hill Celtics Beaten by Maccabees

Dorchester Maccabees, Bay State soccer league outfit, won its first trophy by defeating Bunker Hill Celtics, 4 to 3, in an exhibition match yesterday at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury. The Maccabees took the lead and then lost it but they staged a whirlwind finish to snare the trophy donated by the Boston Soccer Social Club.

HOUR RACE WILL BE FEATURE

Another hour race will be the next attraction which Manager Nat Butler will offer at his Revere Cycle track, with a 10-mile amateur motor paced race as a side feature.

In the big race he will have Franco Georgetti, a pronounced favorite at the beach resort now as a result of the great riding he has shown there this year; Frankie Keenan of Revere, who furthered his comeback in the Golden Wheel race by finishing second to Georgetti; George Chapman, and LeTournier, the fiery little Frenchman, who fought so hard in last week's race, and Charlie Jaeger. Butler may add one more rider to the field later in the week.

The Golden Wheel race provided one of the most thrilling events of the season. Some people were astonished at its conclusion that the time for the event was so slow, it being fully six minutes behind the record.

Eddie Shea Stops Ray McIntyre

Peoria, Ill., July 22 (INS)—Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, today boasted a knockout victory over Ray McIntyre of Los Angeles. Shea threw three quick rights to McIntyre's chin in their bout here last night and the Californian was counted out after 1 minute and 40 seconds of action.

Pierce Concord Winner

Concord, July 21—Frank A. Pierce, with a net of 29, won the best selected nine holes of 18 tournament, at one-half handicap, staged over the week-end at the Concord Country Club links.

Johnny Farrell Prefers Golf To Law Courts

New York, July 21 (AP)—Johnny Farrell, former national open golf champion, values a golf game higher than justice as administered by the courts.

The golf star, now a professional at the Bedford Hills Country Club, demonstrated his preference tonight when he announced that he couldn't appear tomorrow in West Side court to prefer charges against three men he said had attacked him. He had an important golf match on hand and couldn't break the engagement.

Farrell started the case by appearing in night court with bruises on his cheeks and nose, making a disorderly conduct charge against a hotel where he said three men had assaulted him.

Carnera Must Enter Army In Italy for One Year

Omaha, Neb., July 22 (AP)—An Italian Army uniform and oblivion. That is the future for Primo Carnera, giant Venetian heavyweight, according to Frank Paccassi, business manager of the Carnera troupe.

Paccassi gave expression to his views last night after reading a telegram from Byron H. Uhl, assistant commissioner of immigration, stating that an extension of the stay in the United States had been denied the big boy and Leon See, his French manager.

"Primo has a year of service in Italy," Paccassi related. "That will spell finish to his career. When he leaves the army he won't be worth a darn."

Paccassi disclosed that Carnera's managers had obtained from Premier Mussolini, himself, an extension by which the time for Primo's induction into the Duce's forces was advanced six months. That extension is now near expiration and the day on which the ring gladiator must turn from pugilistic to military science is fast approaching.

"And," lamented Paccassi, "we were going to get him matched with Jack Dempsey and Young Stribling."

Paccassi received word yesterday that Carnera and See must vacate America. It was in a telegram addressed to See, and informed him that the State Department had refused extension of stay to him and his charge and that they must prepare to leave the country. Paccassi said that he had communicated the orders to See at Steubenville, O., where Carnera appeared in an exhibition last night.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

By withdrawing the clubhead and swinging it back as I have outlined, with emphasis on the thought of keeping your left arm going and your shoulders following after it, you should find yourself, at the top, in an easy and perfect poise, with no undue strain in any part of you. You may at first find yourself uncomfortably tight about the middle of the body, which would indicate only that your muscles are unused to such twisting. However, if there is pronounced tightness in your shoulders you may be certain that you are "struggling" some with the club. The action does not call for any such struggle, but for just the opposite. Keep within yourself and be content to use perhaps somewhat less of a pivot than you will be able to accomplish with more practice and use of this correct back swing. And to maintain poise and balance, you must keep the back swing slowly-smooth. Too fast with the action will almost certainly pull you off your anchorage with the ground, and make it impossible for you effectively to stroke the ball.

DAN HOWLEY HELPS TRIO COME BACK

By JOE CASHMAN

American League managers certainly did well by their pal, Dan Howley, when he quit the organization to become pilot of the Cincinnati Reds.

Unconsciously or otherwise, they gave Weymouth's favorite son the nucleus of a pretty fair ball club by permitting him to grab off Harry Heilmann, Bob Meusel and Leo Durocher via the waiver route.

Joe Cashman

Both Heilmann and Meusel were supposed to be all through and Durocher, a youngster, was regarded as being too weak with the stick to make the grade, when Howley picked them up.

All three appeared guilty of the charges in Redland early this season but they finally fell under the spell of Howley's managerial magic and their fine work of late has made it possible for the Reds to win 12 of their last 14 games.

Each is playing better ball than his successor in the American League and the manager who let him out is being sharply criticized by the fans, which, incidentally, is unfair, to our way of thinking.

Heilmann wasn't playing good ball for Bucky Harris in Detroit and neither Meusel or Durocher was producing for Bob Shawkey in New York. So neither pilot should be blamed because Howley has performed miracles with the trio.

Heilmann Playing Better for Reds

Heilmann seems to be in better shape, both physically and mentally, in Cincinnati, than he ever was in Detroit.

Noted as a slow starter in the American League, he quickly rounded into shape under Howley and has been the club's best slicker and greatest hustler almost from the start.

In fact, Detroit fans would have trouble recognizing him in a Cincinnati uniform today, he is so much lighter, and faster, and more ambitious than he ever was while a Tiger.

He is hitting close to .370 and playing the best ball of his long career in the field. He is worth every penny of his large salary, said to be $18,000.

Meusel fell into a batting slump early in the campaign and finally had to be benched, but he is now back better than ever, he proved to the satisfaction of Hub fans by banging out two mighty home runs and playing a great all-around game in the Sabbath twin bill.

Muldoon Blocked Wills in His Effort to Win Title

'IRON MAN OF BOXING' AIDED RICKARD'S PLAN TO KEEP DEMPSEY'S CROWN SAFE

By JACK CONWAY

William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Athletic Commission, was the power behind Tex Rickard which prevented Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, from receiving an opportunity to battle Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Muldoon has led the fight in New York against "mixed" bouts. He does not believe they help the boxing game.

Jack Conway

Only recently the New York Athletic Commission blocked an attempt to match Young Jack Thompson against Jackie Fields in a bout for the welterweight championship of the world. Thompson is a Negro, which is one of the reasons for the action taken by the New York Solons.

Thompson's record justified his getting a match with Fields. He later received his opportunity at Detroit, where he wrested the title from Fields. If the New York commission had its way Thompson would never have received a chance to battle for the title.

Harry Wills was probably a victim of the sins of Jack Johnson. The latter was in so much turmoil when he was champion that Tex Rickard soured on the idea of having another Negro heavyweight champion on his hands.

Rickard did everything possible to make it unnecessary for Dempsey to battle Wills for the title. He could not have been successful, however, if he had not received the backing of Muldoon. The "Iron Man of Boxing" was able to keep Dempsey in the proper light with his public despite the fact he refused to give Wills a crack at the championship. Muldoon opposed the match in private and also at the meetings of the New York Athletic Commission.

At one time Wills closed in on Dempsey to a point where the latter began to lose standing with the fans.

MULDOON SAVED TIGER

Jack then agreed to box Wills in New York, and was then told by the commission, with Muldoon as spokesman, that a "mixed" match would not be allowed in the Empire State.

I always felt that Dempsey would not consent to meet Wills until he had first been assured by Rickard and Muldoon that the contest would not be permitted in New York.

James A. Farley later took up the fight for Wills. He swung the members of the commission, with the exception of Muldoon, over to voting Wills the leading challenger. Farley insisted that Dempsey meet Wills in New York.

Meanwhile Rickard had arranged a Dempsey-Tunney bout. With Farley leading the fight for Wills, the Dempsey-Tunney match was voted out.

It was at this time that Dempsey's pride received its greatest blow. He entered the Garden one night to attend a boxing show and was booed and jeered. Then Harry Wills rushed down a ringside aisle and was given a tremendous ovation.

That demonstration barred Wills from the Dempsey-Tunney bout in Philadelphia. I was standing with Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager, in a Philadelphia hotel when Wills came over to where we were talking.

"Rickard has just notified me that I won't be allowed inside of the stadium tonight," Wills told Mullins.

"I just heard about it, too," said Paddy sadly. "Guess there is no chance for us to get a shot at Dempsey now."

Johnny Buckley stepped into the group and urged Mullins to give Jack Sharkey a shot at Wills.

"Sharkey just licked George Godfrey in Boston," said Buckley, "and is the only heavyweight of any standing who will enter the ring with Wills."

"I know it," replied Mullins. "Tunney has given out a statement to the press that if he wins from Dempsey he will never give Wills a shot at the title. It looks as though we are out."

$50,000 FOR WILLS

Wills got a guarantee of $50,000 for the Sharkey bout. The show was staged on October 12, 1926, and Sharkey won in 13 rounds.

Wills was completely outclassed by Sharkey. He was later knocked out by Paulino.

I always felt that Dempsey passed up his greatest opportunity to get a record purse in not meeting Wills. The match was a "natural," as it had been steamed up by every newspaper in the country. The show would have drawn $3,000,000. Dempsey could have got over $1,000,000 for his end of the purse as Wills was willing to fight for almost nothing just to get a crack at the champion.

Dempsey never had any objections to meeting Wills. His actions were governed by Rickard, Muldoon and Jack Kearns. The latter didn't have any serious objections to a "mixed" bout like Rickard or Muldoon, but he considered Wills too dangerous. Kearns preferred easier game.

Kearns overestimated Wills. I saw Wills in several bouts when he was at the peak of his career. Even then he never compared with great colored heavyweights like Sam Langford, Jack Johnson, Joe Jeanette and Sam McVey.

I always felt that if Kearns had turned Dempsey loose that the old Tiger would have stopped Wills inside of five rounds. Dempsey was a terrific body puncher, and Harry didn't like them any too well downstairs.

Langford, when long past his peak, kayoed Wills. At the time Harry was a strong youngster rushing up the fistic trail.

WILLS SAVED MONEY

Wills picked up a tidy fortune as a "Black Menace." He got $100,000 battling Firpo, $50,000 stopping Weinert and many touches of $25,000.

Unlike Johnson, Wills didn't spend his money tossing wild parties and making whoopee. He put it into apartment houses in New York, where it appreciated in value and brought him a tidy income.

Jack Conway will have another article on "The Inside Story of the Boxing Racket" in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Highland A. A. Books Reno-Mullins Bout

Matchmaker Jack Murphy of the Highland A. A., Brockton, has rematched Patsy Reno, Brockton youngster, and Irish Paddy Mullins for the feature bout, a 10-rounder, at the Highland Park stadium Thursday night. When the boys fought about a month ago Mullins scored a knockout in the seventh round, and the Brockton battler will be seeking revenge. There will be four other bouts.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

CANZONERI WHIPS BASS

Philadelphia, July 22 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri, rugged New Yorker, finds Benny Bass as easy to conquer as a junior lightweight as he did as a featherweight.

Three years ago Canzoneri won the featherweigh crown from Bass and last night he gave the Philadelphian, recognized in many states as junior lightweight champion, one of the worst beatings of his career in a 10-round bout at the Phillies' ball park.

Due to the wording of the contract, which stipulated that the New Yorker must weigh more than 130, Frank Wiener, chairman of the commission, ordered Tony to go out and eat. When he returned he weighed 131¼. The reports said that Canzoneri would claim the title because he was under junior lightweight limit at the official weighing-in time.

GAMES TONIGHT
Revere at Somerville, Lincoln pk.
Mt. Hope at Allston, No. Brighton.
Newton at South Boston, Columbus pk.
Hyde Park at Jamaica, Carolina ave.

Mt. Hope will go to Allston this evening and Revere will take the jaunt to Lincoln Park to meet the Somerville City Club in Hub Twilight League games tonight.

Mt. Hope split its first half series with Allston and another interesting series is due in the second half.

Somerville is tearing along in its quest for top honors and by nicking Allston, 4 to 3, on Sunday it cut in on the Hopedale's hopes of catching up to Revere. Somerville is now after Revere's scalp and these two teams will furnish the noise at Lincoln Park, Somerville, this evening. Manager Tom Cosgrove of the City Club is getting some fine backing in Somerville since the new stands have been erected at Lincoln Park.

Although St. Augustine's dropped its first game away from home, as new members of the loop, to the Newton Upper Falls team, it showed great batting strength and Newton will have to have a dependable flinger to stop the Southie team this evening at Columbus Park, South Boston.

Manager Sullivan of the Jamaica Board of Trade team figures his hitters stand a chance of stopping Corrigan the Hyde Park ace, this evening at the Carolina Ave. Field Jamaica Plain.

To add strength to its battery, Allston will take on Polyehronides, the Brighton high all-scholastic catcher, who caught Lefty McLaughlin's slants all year. This is a snappy battery which should boost Allston's chances in the second half race.

Sonnenberg Downs Wagner Twice

Dayton, Ky., July 22 (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestler, defeated Jack Wagner, Providence, R. I., in two straight falls here last night.

Sonnenberg won the first in 22¾ minutes with a flying tackle and the second in 3½ minutes with a body slam. Sonnenberg weighed 203; Wagner 198.

Photographic Study Made of Bobby Jones' Golf

Atlanta, July 22 (AP)—A photographic study of the golfing wizardry of Bobby Jones, which one golf expert described as the "greatest forward step in golf teaching" ever made, has been completed here with a superspeed camera taking 3200 pictures a second.

Details of the study, made for the Professional Golfers' Association of America at the East Lake Country Club, Bobby's home course, yesterday, were revealed today.

C. Francis Jenkins of Washington, inventor of television and broadcasting of motion pictures; George Sargent, former president of the P. G. A., and John W. Ogle, cameraman, were in charge of the work.

The world's greatest golfer executed his strokes in actual shots while the camera, one of four of its kind in the world, roared wildly as its high-speed mechanism recorded the strokes for posterity.

After the tests Jones demonstrated a few practice strokes on the fairway and ended the afternoon by dropping one 180-yard iron shot into the hole.

Sargent said there has been "too much guess work and tradition in teaching golf" and that the machine "is the only thing we have found that will show what actually takes place in a golfing stroke, in every detail. It is the purpose of the P. G. A. to make a complete set of shots by Bobby Jones, the greatest of the modern golfers, and of Harry Vardon, greatest of the old masters of golf, and of Miss Joyce Wethered, greatest of woman players," he said.

Sargent and Ogle will sail August 5 for England to make pictures of Miss Wethered and Vardon.

"When these three sets are completed, carefully selected strokes will be printed for distribution among the members of the P. G. A. for their own study and guidance in the teaching of golf. It is my firm conviction that these pictures will clear up for the first time, and for all time to come, the many disputed and misunderstood details and phases of the golfing stroke."

He said the tests were the greatest forward step ever taken in golf teaching.

The superspeed camera is operated by an automobile starter, with two batteries attached, giving it eight horsepower. O. B. Keeler, golf writer for the Atlanta Journal, describing the tests, said: "The 200 feet of film shot through it in one second, with a noise like the ripping up of 40,000 linen sheets. I told Bobby he never need do any flinching because of gallery noises any more. He didn't seem to mind the fiendish racket at all.

Bobby, himself a graduate in mechanical engineering at the Georgia School of Technology, evinced intense interest.

U. S. Track Stars Beaten in Europe

Stockholm, July 22 (INS)—European track and field stars again scored in the second of a three-day international meet here.

Two American university stars, C. Pendleton and Steven Anderson of the University of Washington, succumbed to their foreign competitors. Pendleton finished third in the 200-meter dash, Anderson came in second in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Alexander Given Release by Dallas

Dallas, Tex., July 22—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran big league pitcher, was given his outright release by the Dallas club of the Texas League.

Failure to keep in training, after he had promised to do so several days ago, was given by Bob Tarleton, vice-president of the Dallas club, as the reason for Alexander's removal from the roster.

HEAVIES WILL FEATURE SHOW

Once again the followers of ammon pure boxing around this section of the country will be given the opportunity of witnessing about all of the leading heavyweights around compete in a single tourney when Dilboy Post stages their fourth tournament of the season tomorrow night at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

The 180 pounds division promises to be hotly contested, with such boys as Bob Allen, Dorchester; Red Chase, Lowell; George Van Acker, Lawrence; George Kelley, Boston; Jim Carney, East Cambridge; Marshall Mox, Boston, and Philip Dinsmore, Everett, competing.

Wright Will Never Abandon Title

STATE CHAMP FOUGHT HARD FOR HONORS

By BILL GRIMES

"How does he do it?"

This question has been heard hundreds of times during the past three State championships.

The query concerns Fred J. Wright, Jr., Albemarle, five-time winner of the Massachusetts amateur title, as to his ability to go through despite the fact that he has been noticeably off form during many rounds.

What is the reason for Wright's success?

It is simple.

He is the best competitor in the State. And, as he knows that he is feared by opponents, one and all, he has two aces buried, which, when it comes to a showdown, is practically an unbeatable combination.

Wright has unshaken confidence in his ability. He is not outwardly conceited and never has been known to brag over his game. Neither has he been guilty of harboring the thoughts that he should take the backwash of any of the nationally famous golfers.

The fact that he has never been known to "choke" under the most trying circumstances is the best evidence of his competitive spirit.

Wright Is Man of "Two Personalities"

Fred Wright has two separate and distinct personalities during a championship. During a title match, he is all business. He has a task to perform and he is out to get results.

He seldom converses with an opponent, even to the extent of commenting on a shot, whether it is good or bad. Through his actions in championships, he has been misunderstood by hundreds of golf enthusiasts and by many of his opponents.

Win or lose, after a match, Freddie Wright is a real fellow. He can lose as graciously as he wins. He has never alibied a defeat but he has always stood ready to play a return match with any of his conquerors.

Wright Will Never Abandon His Title

Freddie Wright will continue in State championship competition as long as he can stay at the top of the heap. He will never retire with the title in his possession.

Why? Because it was the fact that when he won his first State title, the preceding champion did not defend, and for that reason Freddie was not unanimously recognized as the titleholder. Such insinuation not only hurt Wright but were the cause of determination to win and show the "doubting Thomases" that he was a real champion.

SWIM STARS READY FOR RACES

Joan McSheehy Mildred Toomey

THE GIRLS shown above will compete in the races at Upper Mystic Lake, Medford, on Sunday afternoon. Miss McSheehy is one of the best of the local swimmers in backstroke races. Miss Toomey is a capable all-around performer. The meet Sunday is being held as a part of the Medford tercentenary celebration. Most of the good swimmers of the Bay State are entered in the races, which bids fair to be one of the best of the season.

16 LOCAL MEN PICKED FOR MAAU

Jack Ryder, veteran coach of Boston College and the Boston Athletic Association, will lead a band of 16 of New England's track and field stars to Pittsburgh the latter part of August in quest of the National A. A. U. crown, according to the selections made by the committee in charge at the quarters of the Unicorn Club.

George Morin, the Holy Cross lad who won the two New England sprint titles at Quincy, Sunday, under Unicorn colors, will do the dashing in both the century and furlong for this sector of the country.

Donald Fleet, the Boston College sensation, who will enter his sophomore year next fall, and holder of the New England quarter mile crown, procured under B. A. A. colors last Sunday, will represent this section in the 440 at the Smoky City meet. Fleet, who hails from Gloucester, is one of the fastest men at the distance ever turned out in this corner of the country.

Tom McDonough, a Woburn tanner and the latest long-distance find of Jack Ryder, will do the honors in the six miles event. McDonough wears the spangles of the Boston A. A. as does Earl G. Wilson, who will wear the Unicorn colors in the three miles walk.

A pair of Northeastern lads, Alton W. Morang of Waltham and George Martin of West Medford, will compete in the high jump and pole vault, respectively, at the National title games. Joe Poirier of the Brockton "Y" will be the New England color bearer in the broad jump while Eric Ostrand of the Swedish Gym Club Svea will carry the colors in the hop, step and jump.

RUDY'S TOUR OF N. E. STARTS TOMORROW

Westbrook, Me., July 22—Rudy—the home town boy who made good in the city—wound up his home town stay today by remaining home with the folks.

Tomorrow he will begin a tour of New England with his famous Connecticut Yankees that starts at Marlboro, Mass. On Thursday he will play and croon at Hampton Beach, N. H., and then will go to Old Orchard Beach before heading for Greater Boston.

The last public day of Rudy Vallee's home stay——yesterday—was marked by a parade, a dinner in Rudy in Legion Memorial Hall and the leading, by Rudy, of the Westbrook City Band in the uniform he used to wear when a member of that organization, when an obscure horn tooter.

GIVES KEY TO CITY

Mayor Eugene Cummings presented Rudy the key to the city, a big gold affair, suitably inscribed, Ernest O. Portell, chairman of the "Rudy Vallee Day" committee, presented him, on behalf of his fellow-citizens, a luxurious pen and pencil set.

Buildings were draped in bunting—red, white and blue, the blue and white of the University of Maine and banners of welcome. Children carried sausage-shaped balloons with messages of welcome. Pennants flapped in the breeze, blue and white flags for Rudy.

ALL ADMITTED TO DANCE

There never was such a banquet in Westbrook. Six hundred were seated at seven long tables in Legion Hall. Thirty-five of Westbrook's prettiest girls were waitresses. Hundreds more waited outside the banquet hall until the dinner was over and the tables cleared away, and were then admitted for the dancing.

One couldn't buy a ticket in Westbrook for the dinner for the past week. A visitor offered $100 for four tickets but there was no speculation.

It was just about noon that Rudy drove into town. He had spent Sunday with Don Dickerman in Lovell. Dickerman owns the night club in New York, from which Rudy first went on the air. He owns others, too. For his newest, he took Rudy's familiar greeting, "Heigh ho, everybody," and named the club Heigh Ho.

With Paul Gross, pianist of the Connecticut Yankees; Kenneth Dolan, his private secretary; Milan Welch, a Westbrook boy, his publicity man, Rudy drove down the main street, and the crowds cheered.

Vets' Hospital Head May Be Shifted

Rutland Heights, July 22 (AP)—Dr. Henry Ladd Stickney, medical officer in charge of the United States Veterans Hospital here, has indicated that he will be transferred.

Asked concerning rumors to that effect, he said that he had not yet received his transfer, but that he had correspondence that leads him to believe he is to be transferred to Sunmount, Tupper Lake, N. Y., and that Dr. R. L. Cook of that institution is to take his place at Rutland Heights.

Archduke Fails in Rush Trial Plan

New York, July 22 (US)—The plan of Archduke Leopold of Austria in going voluntarily to the tombs yesterday in order to gain a quick trial on a grand larceny charge failed of its purpose. Dist.-Atty. Crain said Leopold could not be placed on trial until October, because two witnesses are in Europe.

The indictment against his highness resulted from the sale of the Napoleon necklace, owned by his aunt, Archduchess Marie Therese.

BODY OF BLACK AWAITS WIDOW

New York, July 22 (US) — The body of Harry St. Francis Black, realty financier found dead with a bullet in his brain at his Huntington, L. I., home, rests today in the receiving vault at Woodlawn Cemetery. Funeral arrangements await the return of his widow, Isabelle May Black, from Somerville, Ireland, where she has been a guest of Lady Athlumney.

Despite the coroner's report of suicide due to melancholia, officials are following clues of violence seemingly indicated by circumstances.

ALL 1930 BUICK CARS SOLD

H. K. Noyes, president of the Noyes Buick Co., announces a clean sweep of Buicks of the 1930 model by his organization.

The fact that not a 1930 Buick remains unsold in the Boston salesroom is offered as proof that many people are purchasing automobiles despite the business depression.

The company's fiscal year begins Aug. 1, so that the floors are cleared for the 1931 display. Mr Noyes said:

"An outstanding, and probably unequalled record has been established by our organization in the sale of 3448 new Buicks and Marquettes and 4196 used cars, with a combined inventory of over $8,000,000 during this fiscal year."

What can be done with Life Insurance

(5) Guaranteed Education for the Children

COLLEGE education, which was once considered a luxury, later became an advantage, and is today a necessity.

In the average family, the question often is, How to ensure for the children this important preparation for living a life and earning a living? How to do this on limited means? How to safeguard them against the possible loss of the provider of both bread and education?

There is a way for parents to build a fund for this purpose—an Education Fund—through LIFE INSURANCE. The best time to begin is when the children are young and the saving plan through LIFE INSURANCE can be carried out over a long period of years.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me during Change of Life. I had to lie down most of the time because I felt so weak and I could not stand the least bit of noise. I was that nervous. I felt blue and could cry if anyone looked at me. I could not sleep or eat but I am much better now and am able to work every day. I certainly do recommend the Vegetable Compound and I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. J. James.

Pinkham booklet in my mail box and I started taking the Vegetable Compound three times a day. I am now a well woman. Three of my neighbors know what it did for me so they are taking it too. QUINCY POLICE HUNT HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Tip on Drownings Wins $25 Prize

Smithy Hears That Roy Is Wounded

CHAPTER 35

Some of them don't even know what the war is about. I met a canteen waitress the other day, who thought the Huns were black and came from Africa and were on the side of the allies. She knew the Germans as Fritz and was astounded that the Huns were the same.

She had joined up to see Paris, and although she wasn't exactly seeing Paris she was having the time of her life. The truth is, the greater percentage enlisted because of the pay, which is good, considering they are rationed and uniformed free. Incidentally, the change from home life is not to be despised.

They had no idea there would be personal danger, but once in they stick it because they're here for the duration. There is just as much danger from the air a England now, by all accounts, and the munition girls on high explosives are taking far greater chances. Incompetence or lack of discipline will always get you a free ticket Blightywards, of course.

Fit of Pique
Why One Girl Joined

Cheery joined up in a fit of pique because her regular young man was billeted in a French village where there were "Mamselles." "I told him two could play at that game," says Cheery She is a born flirt. Her motto is "Familiar to all, courteous to none"—a reversal of the routine order, "Courteous to all, familiar to none" She is pretty and has a roving eye

Cheery off duty without her Tommy would be as strange as a meal without Machonochie. Her favorite recreation is "leading the boys up the garden." Blimey openly questions this and accuses her of occasionally "lettin' them into the summer-ouse." Cheery does not deny this

"I'm a grown woman an' I can enjoy meself if I like an' 'ow I like!" But Blimey does not hold with this view. "No bloke wants a girl wot ain't pure," is her contention.

Misery is engaged to be married to a young man in England exempt from military service on the grounds of "indispensable." She comes from a good home with a piano in the parlor and lace curtains at the front windows. She's not used to this sort of rough life. She came out to save money for the wedding. Her grouse is as permanent and perpetual as her catarrh. She crochets fiercely on every available opportunity at a crochet headspread destined to cover her self and Fred at some remote date

"Gaw-l, ye'll be too busy blowin' yer nose to need a bed," gibes Blimey.

On the Carpet
Smithy Is Called Up

The Unit Administrator wants me in her private office. I have only had this special summons once before—when mother wrote to her the month I arrived with a request that I should be recommended for a commission on account of my previous war services at the convoy.

The Unit Administrator reminded me forcibly of Aunt Helen in her manner. She was breezy, she was jovial, she was energetic, she was determined, and dreadfully, overwhelmingly charming. The interview might be described as a succession of surprises. On her part, that is. She was surprised I had not spoken of my excellent record She was surprised I had not confessed to being the driver who was with the well-known Georgina Tonbington on the occasion of her sad death on active service. She was surprised I had not tried for a commission in the WAACS.

She was surprised that if I had not tried for a commission in the WAACS I had not joined up as an ambulance driver. All these things surprised her. But not to the extent that my refusal to budge from my Assistant Cook's job surprised her.

I knock on her door and enter indifferently in reply to her invitation. She has a letter in her hand. I recognize the handwriting instantly. Mother. I have not answered her last half-dozen letters

"You wanted me, Ma'am?"

"Sit down, Smith."

I obey. It is an uncommon request. The Unit Administrator does not usually request the rank

Lad, 6, 'Lynched' by Pals

THIS IS HOW playmates strung up Jean Ouellette, 6, of 4 Proctor st., Salem, in initiating him into the "Bloody Eight." He was almost strangled when his mother found him.

BOY HANGED TO TREE IN PLAY

Hanged on a tree and left to die by two boy playmates, imitating the Indians of the movies, John Ouellette, 6, of Proctor st., Salem, was discovered as he was slowly choking and was released by his mother, it was revealed today.

The boys had seen a Western film in which a "bad Indian" had been given his deserts, according to the Western code, by being hung up to a tree by cowboys, who gathered stiff on their guns and left him swinging. [illegible] needed they could do it as well as the film actors

Ouellette's companions, whose names are withheld by police because of their youth, induced him to act as cowboy, while they were to be Indians seeking revenge upon him because of the hanging of a member of their tribe

They got a clothesline, made a crude slipnoose and put it around Ouellette's neck The other end was thrown over a branch of a tree on Putnam st., near his home Then they pulled the protesting boy off his feet, tied the rope and in their innocence of consequences went away

SOLVED THE MYSTERY OF 6 DEATHS

Second Award in American's News Contest for Story of Slayer's Confession

Some sizzling news stories claimed the attention of wide awake tipsters last week.

It was a great week to test the mettle of amateur news gatherers and the fact that the competition was keen shows the stuff that the Boston Evening American tipsters are made of.

Boston papers were reaching out last Monday for more information on the search for six youths and a girl, lost in Massachusetts Bay off Scituate, when William Curran called up the Boston Evening American city editor from the Fish Pier

Although "Bill" Curran was no aware of it at the time, he had the solution of this mystery of the deep

"A ship's just in with a couple of bodies," said Curran

TIP SPEEDED THE NEWS

In short order the presses in Winthrop were roaring, grinding out papers with the dramatic story of the death of five young men and a girl and the last-minute rescue of one [illegible]

"Bill" Curran's tip speeded the news into the hands of Boston Evening American readers, and to Curran goes first prize of $25. It was a mighty good tip. Curran works at Pier 42

On another tip this from far away New Haven, the Boston Evening American scooped the town with the solution of the slaying of Mrs. Katherine Edith Thompson Wight in Saugus

From a local source the Evening American was getting the first news of the arrest of Bernard Thompson, the dead woman's nephew, when a New Haven man came on the telephone with a [illegible] information on the same subject

GOT SLAYER'S CONFESSION

He was one of a handful in New Haven, including policemen, aware of young Thompson's arrest and its significance. The first report of the American that day [illegible] told the full story and [illegible] the confession of the youth yesterday. Unfortunately the New Haven tipster asked that his name be withheld, but he wins second prize, $15, and it will be mailed to him.

Third prize of $10 goes to Edward Major, who called in the Keller Shoe Shop, Park sq. He flashed the news of the blacklacking of a boy in the Park Sq Building with the robbery of $500.

Fascinating, this news tipping, isn't it? Fascinating whether you're tipping on news features or photographs—for there were many tips on recent features and pictures last week. Sometimes it's a

Postoffice employes four or more beyond the retirement age of their grade and with a retirement status of 15 years allowable service to their credit must retire at the close of business August 31.

Gow, and posted at the postoffice, from Lorel N Morgan acting first assistant postmaster-general, in response to an inquiry as to whether employes could be retained under the Act of 1925 more than four years beyond retirement age

$100 Weekly for News Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Every week $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best, first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best and $2 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

Grasshoppers Birds' Diet

ONE, TWO, THREE, FOUR, sometimes many more grasshoppers are devoured in the dieting plan adopted by these two bluebirds. They are the highly prized pets of Mrs. David Holbrook, in West Peabody. Following tragedy to the birds' parents, Mrs. Holbrook adopted the feathered pals. All seem happy as the wild birds are day by day becoming nice tame birds. The feeding process is on. (Staff photo.)

MRS. DAVID HOLBROOK smiles, and rightly too, for she has Boston's unique pet championship. Mrs. Holbrook knows birds. For in this case she is doing a grand job of training. Did you notice that tweezers are used in transferring grasshoppers to bird's mouth?

Big Legion Delegation

The [illegible] department of Massachusetts of the American Legion will send 1700 delegates [illegible] eight bands and two drum corps to the national convention in October.

Their parents overtaken by disaster, two young bluebirds are being reared at the home of Mrs. David Holbrook in Newbury st., West Peabody.

For the last three years the same pair of bluebirds have reared their young in a birdhouse set in a tree on the grounds of the Holbrook home

About 15 days ago Mrs. Holbrook discovered four young bluebirds in the nest. The very next day tragedy entered the bluebird family, the father being killed by a hit-and-run motorist and the mother furnishing a mid-day meal for a cat

FACED STARVATION

The young were thus left to starvation unless Mrs. Holbrook intervened. She did. She carried them into the house in the nest and placed them in a small box over a hot water bag that was covered with a piece of flannel

"I wanted to do just what the mother bird did," she said, "and I know that she fed them bugs

The nearest I could come to bugs was grasshoppers. They could not grasp the food with their bills so I used a pair of tweezers and placed the hoppers right in their throats.

"Four days after bringing them into the house, two of the babies died

"The grasshopper supply ran low and I began feeding the remaining two with pieces of finely ground meat

LIKE NEW DIET

"This new diet they seemed to relish and I gave them bits of fish and they did justice to those, too."

The two survivors are taken out daily for exercise by Mrs Holbrook, they have learned without the teaching of parents what their wings are for and fly about the yard and [illegible] the sill of the house

Of course they [illegible] but Mrs. Holbrook says [illegible] one call. Tweet, tweet! they both fly around her and light on her shoulders

The boy is in a serious condition at his home with a fractured skull a broken ankle and body bruises

The accident, according to police, occurred [illegible] Adams st., Quincy near Stoney Brae Golf Club After striking the boy, the operator stopped his automobile and at command of the operator of another car took the injured boy into the automobile, apparently to take him to a hospital

A short time later two other boys found young Plant unconscious on the sidewalk and carried him home on a [illegible]

In the excitement no one, as far as the police can determine thought to get the number of the machine that struck the boy

Police were hopeful today that the operator of the second car who answered the hit-and-run driver to take the victim to the hospital might have taken the number.

"ANGEL MOTHER" ELLEN MASON MENTALLY WEAK, NIECE CHARGES

$5,000,000 WILL FIGHT LAUNCHED

Mrs. Margaret Winthrop Forbes, One of Chief Beneficiaries, Starts Contest

The charge that Miss Ellen Frances Mason of Boston known to the poor as the "Angel Mother," had no mental capacity was made today by Mrs Margaret Winthrop Forbes of Manchester-by-the-Sea in support of her contest to break Miss Mason's $5,000,000 will

The will, which left millions to charity, was filed in Superior Court at Newport, R. I., where Miss Mason lived in the summer, and Mrs. Forbes' allegations were filed there today

Mrs. Forbes alleges also that the document is not the last will and testament of Miss Mason and that it was not drawn up and filed in accordance with Rhode Island laws

In the will Mrs Forbes, wife of Grant Forbes and niece of Miss Mason, was left $7,000 outright and $150 000 was left in trust for her three children There were other bequests to relatives amounting to about $1,000 000 in all

The other $4,000,000 was left in trust for charitable purposes but there was a provision that Mrs Forbes' children must never be left in need and if necessary part of the charity fund might be used for their benefit

Miss Mason lived with her sister, Miss Ida Mason, at 1 Walnut st., Beacon Hill The latter died two years ago. Funds provided by them were one of the chief sources of private charitable expenses here for years

James P. Comstock, 20, of Pearl st., North Weymouth, captured by the wives of two Weymouth policemen and held as a "Peeping Tom," probably is not responsible for his acts, his mother, Mrs. Sarah Comstock, said today. Sergt. George W. Hunt and Patrolman Anthony Parente set a trap for Comstock after a North Weymouth woman had turned over to them a note written by a man who said he had been peeping in her window and wanted to meet her. The policemen's wives kept the appointment and the officers made the arrest

DONAHUE BARS ALL SECRET PARLEYS

Democratic Ranks Agitated by Rumors That Fitzgerald Had Begun to Hedge

BY BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Attempts on the part of some Democratic chieftains to entice Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic state committee, into secret parleys on the make-up of a slate to be presented to the conference in Worcester next Monday, have been firmly rejected by Donahue.

The chairman stated today that he has no sympathy with such overtures, believing that the best interests of the party call for a free and open discussion and decision during the conference itself which will be held in the Hotel Bancroft.

Rumor that former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald had begun to hedge on his offer to place his political future in the hands of the conference were agitating the ranks today

DONAHUE NOT DISTURBED

According to these reports Fitzgerald is saying:

"Why should I get out of the governorship primary contest where I have practically no opposition to enter the senatorial fight where there are several strong candidates?"

Donahue, it is known, is undisturbed by these stories, pointing out that it was on Fitzgerald's own suggestion that the state committee was called and authorized the Worcester meeting

In the face of the crystallization of sentiment for Fitzgerald for senator, others emphasized, it would be ruinous for the former mayor to attempt to run out on the conference at this late day, especially after his original selection of that office.

FITZGERALD STRENGTHENED

It is admitted by all that Fitzgerald considerably strengthened himself when he made his offer. His friends for this reason place little confidence on the hedging stories

At the headquarters of William M. Butler, Republican candidate for senator, it was given out that more than 100,000 signatures have been obtained to date on his nomination papers. This is declared to be a record.

BUTLER CONFIDENT

Candidate Butler will be the principal guest and speaker next Thursday at the dedication of two beacon lights erected by the government at Wareham.

On Wednesday he will attend the outing of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce at Lynnfield, and later in the day will be the guest of the Women's Republican Club in Fall River.

Indicative of the confidence of his followers, the former senator has received more than twenty invitations to attend functions after the primary.

HEAT PROBLEMS A JOKE TO ANIMALS AND BIRDS IN THE ZOO

Connie Murphy

Tom Curtin Jack Murphy

WHILE HUMANS IN BOSTON SWELTERED in the heat of the past few weeks, animals at the Franklin Park Zoo were "living the life of Riley" with the aid of every sort of a cooling device that Curator Dan Harkins could bring to their assistance. The enormous hippo shown in the picture at the left kept cool inside and out by wallowing in his tank drinking gallons of water. Just look at him yawn between swallows. The grizzly bear, center picture, splashed around for hours in his big bath tank keeping away from the heat. The prize Macaw at the aviary thought he was back in the jungles of central Brazil. Just look at him telling Tom Curtin and little Connie and Jackie Murphy all about his jungle days. (Staff Photo).

8 HAVE INFANT PARALYSIS

Six persons in Salem and two in Lynn have been stricken with infantile paralysis during the last three weeks, it was revealed today when Dr. J. A. Dumas of the Lynn Board of Health issued a warning to parents of children

Dr. Dumas declared an infantile paralysis epidemic could easily be started if parents are not careful with children's food and milk.

Officials of the State Board of Health declared the eight cases of infantile paralysis did not necessarily indicate that an epidemic had broken out. Dr. Luther a specialist in the disease, declared every effort is being made to conquer the malady and that practically all of the Salem and Lynn victims had received injections of serum.

Dr. Luther announced the serum could be procured at any hour day or night. He has informed all physicians not to hesitate to call for it.

At night the formation could be seen for a long distance.

Last night more than 300 automobiles were parked near the scene, taking a last look at the remarkable formation.

ANIMALS COOL DESPITE HEAT

"Let the old thermometer climb for all we care," veiled Leo, the hyacinthine macaw from the jungles of central Brazil.

Leo was speaking to a crowd of children in the bird house at Franklin Park Zoo, while the thermometer hung around 95, and as he spoke he rockered up and down to the rhythm of a tune whistled by his keeper, Tom Curtin

Leo spoke for all the animals in the zoo, for a tour of their quarters failed to discover a single one suffering from the heat

The polar bears were splashing their shady tank and sitting up prettily for the food which Paul Spiesser offered them for posing for the cameraman

Prince, the handsome grizzly kept cool by playing in his bath tub all by himself, while Old Sue beat down on nestling humans

And Happy, the huge hippopotamus, filled himself with water inside and out, lying submerged when he was not drinking gallons of water from a pipe flowing into his tank

"Nature takes care of the animals' wardrobe, supplying them with thin coats in summer and heavy ones in winter," said Dan Harkins, curator of the zoo. "I cannot see that excessive heat affects any of them unless it is the snakes that seek the cool damp places in their quarters and lie quietly when the thermometer gets dizzy."

Most of the fur-bearing animals keep inside their houses during the heat of the day, including the lions and tigers that seldom come out except to be fed.

'SEASHORE VANITIES' PROVES ACE OF STAGE SHOWS AT SCOLLAY SQ.

PLENTY OF COLOR ON PROGRAM

The Cast

Miss New York — Herself (Frieda Mierse)

Willie Crawley — Chorus of 24

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

THE BARD OF AVON, could he sit in to see that stage show at the Scollay this week, would undoubtedly title it a "Midsummer Night's Scream." It's a daytime mirthquake, too, plus an abundance of color, snap and feminine charms. Not in many moons have we heard so much laughter or applause as greeted the Scollay's "Seashore Vanities," it was very evident the audience adjudged it a wow of a production.

* * *

THIS SPECTACLE OF THE beaches makes stellar entertainment for this season of the year. The sights beyond the footlights are as refreshing as the theater's cool atmosphere; there a high tide of comedy, and the large number of bathing beauties, garbed in scant but very attractive suits, supply up a surf of joyousness properly backed up by well done dances and settings. Because this show is largely of Boston manufacture, and includes a good deal of local talent, a large tribute is due to Manager Vinson for his personal share in the triumph. It took him days and nights to whip the big number into shape, his best praise is the fact that it ensnures up to the standards of visiting presentation units

Jack McBride

* * *

AT THE HEAD of the procession of beauty steps a gorgeous blonde. She has attained note as "Miss New York," and in various Ziegfeld productions. Miss Frieda Mierse received a big hand each time she appeared. She varied her habilments, ranging from the one-piece in which she won her first public acclaim, to the trappings of a Follies girl. She is easy to look at, and an eyeful for curvilinear contour. All the dance numbers centered about her personality and looks were splendidly done, a fact to be laid to the credit of Dance Director Eddie Court. There was variety, there was speed, there was a glorious sprightliness of youth.

"SEASHORE VANITIES" proved its worth as it progressed. Each number "stopped the show." The audience became enthusiastic. No encores were permitted; had they been, there would have been no time left on the schedule for the feature film, Clara Bow, in "Love Among the Millionaires." The stage comedy was in able hands, notably Jack McBride and company, Wilton Crawley and Carroll and Gorman.

There were several big sets Best of them was that showing the big glass tank. In this that mermaiden with the lines of a Venus, Odava, disported, being equally at home under water as swimming on the surface

The Scollay has a big stage show, and puts it on superbly.

New Triumph

GRETA GARBO

AS RITA in "Romance" feature film this week at Loew's State, Miss Garbo appears in her second talking picture and adds to her laurels

GRETA GARBO AT STATE

The Cast

Rita	Greta Garbo
Van Tuyl	Lewis Stone
Armstrong	Gus Arnheim
Harry	Elliott Nugent
Nanon Van Tuyl	Florence Lake
Miss Armstrong	Clara Blandick
Bijou	Henry Armetta
Vannucci	Mathilde Comont
Nina	Countess Du Lacquer

GRETA GARBO and the able Lewis Stone romance smoothly and well at Loew's State this week in this her second talking picture. Miss Garbo a year ago proved her voice is satisfactory for all sound screen purposes, her diction is different from the usual, so her role of a gypsy singer is not a singer. It is true that her vocal cords are not perfect for a part of this type yet one is not seeing an actress that one cares more than mass to see you is oncoming. Out of an all stage play broadcaster in this day and age, she has built a picture of vast appeal. Her name is as music a characterization as one could wish to see, she is spelling convincingly.

* * *

"ROMANCE" COULD so easily have become just another photographed drama. Miss Garbo stands for perfect artistry in whatever she does; so no would make about any sort of a picture vehicle worth seeing, but in the present case, not all of the credit goes to the star for she is assisted by a fine cast, a big hand at the helm of clever direction by Clarence Brown. Instead of confining himself to the limits of the old stage script, Mr. Brown, who knows his movie values thoroughly, swings from one to the other of the two lines. He permits wide range in the sweeping camera, lends a deft magnetic touch and turns in a splendid finish. Work of this man he might that even his hand would have caught.

Reduce entertaining without a Garbo to shine brilliantly.

* * *

MR. STONE CAN ALWAYS be depended upon to fill a big role, or make a weak one strong. This latter was the achieves in "Romance." As the above par. he here seen in a part he has played so nobly as goes to Garbo he overcomes all handica of the script and gives a performance of vibrant life.

* * *

HERE IS A NEW LEADING man for Mr. Garbo. His name is Gavin Gordon, at one time playing in stock in Boston. He proves he has an acting personality and should remain the film idol. Others in a good cast are Elliott Nugent, Florence Lake, Clara Blandick and Mathilde Comont.

Added attractions at the State this week are the Hearst Metrotone News, Mr. Rodgers at the organ and good film "shorts."—H. S.

WARNERS TO PRESENT NEW WIDE FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, July 22—Secretly, behind closed doors, Warner Brothers have been experimenting with Vitascope, their new wide film. At last, after months of concentration, they have succeeded in making what they believe is the last word in perfected telescope film. The picture chosen for the introduction of their new invention is "Soldier's Plaything," with Ben Lyon, Lotti Loder and Harry Langdon in the leading roles.

The picture was made under the title of "Come Easy" and is by Vina Delmar. Although much was said about Miss Delmar's coming West to write a special story and much was said about the cast called in, we had no idea that this was to inaugurate a new invention. We may expect to see it in about a month

YOUNG CARL LAEMMLE has supplied time faith in human nature when he places Mary Nolan, Jeanette Loff and Mary Duncan all in one picture, "The Boudoir Diplomat." Mary Duncan, being the exotic type, doesn't enter so much into competition because she offers a contrast. Mary Nolan and Jeanette Loff, however, being blondes and not unlike in appearance, will have to fight for honors. Mary Nolan will get preference in booking, having star rights with Universal, but that does not mean the picture is hers. The Boudoir Diplomat is none other than The Love Command' in disguise

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH will not be present at the New York premiere of "Abraham Lincoln." This will be the first big premiere of any of his pictures that D. W. has ever missed. It seems a curious twist of fate that the production which is said to be the best thing he has made since the famous "Birth of a Nation" will not have its director as host. He says frankly he cannot stand the excitement of the first night. He fears the sound track might go wrong or something might happen to the film. That is not like the old D. W. who used to work for days before his picture was shown, timing every scene and planning every bit of music and then be present at the premiere to take a bow. He is now in Texas and while he may go on to New York for the opening he will not be there for the premiere

PUT LEWIS STONE in any role and he lends color to the picture. He is one actor that can be cast in an unimportant part and he will in spite of the insignificance of his role. That is why he is so valuable as a character actor. His latest assignment at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is in "The Passion Flower." Kathleen Norris' book Tris have been made for the girl who is to take the leading woman's role but so far no contracts have been signed. M. G. M. wanted Mary Duncan but she was tied up with Universal for "The Boudoir Diplomat" and they feared she would not be through soon enough

SOMEONE HAS SAID "Say a kind word for Barbara Tennant," who is trying to come back to the movies. It is easy for us to do that, for any actress who belonged to the days when Houdini Peters, King Baggot, Mary Fuller and other pioneers were struggling in the movies, is of interest to this writer. Miss Tennant is being given every encouragement by Phil Glad

SUE MacMANAMY

"THE LONG ROAD," now at the Plymouth, is the second role Sue MacManamy has had in a drama of the World War.

SCORES AGAIN IN WAR FILM

Boston playgoers refer to Sue MacManamy of "The Long Road" as a typical American type. She is tall, slender, dark-haired—of the type that may be seen in many suburban homes. Yet her ancestral background is Scotch-Irish on her father's side and German-English on her mother's

In the war play, now at the Plymouth, Miss MacManamy is in her second role in a drama of the World War. This present experience is much more agreeable than her first. In "An American Ace," which was on Broadway while our troops were in the trenches, Miss MacManamy played the role of a German spy. She can still recall vividly how the audiences hated her and hissed her

Continuing Shows

PLYMOUTH—"The Long Road," drama of the World War, excellently acted, with Otto Kruger in a masterly charactization. Second week.

WILBUR—"Tattle Tales," up-to-the-minute revue, with galaxy of stars. The show sparkles with humor and beauty. Second week.

MISS SHEARER TOPS BILL AT ORPHEUM

Norma Shearer in "Let Us Be Gay," her fifth talking picture is seen at Loew's Orpheum this week. Miss Shearer unquestionably gives the smartest performance of her career. As in "The Divorcee" marital wreckage based upon the husband's infidelity, forms the basis of the plot and throughout Miss Shearer acquits herself with flying colors It is a genuinely sympathetic role she has as the frowsy wife whose marital bliss collapses when her philandering husband has an affair with a younger, prettier woman, and, in the end, when the husband on bended knees begs forgiveness—and is forgiven—the audience noticeably approves and is happy.

At the head of the vaudeville bill, Alex Hyde and his Modern Maidens, 15 adorable maids of melody, are versatility personified. Long-suited on the melodies they coax from their myriad instruments, it is their all 'round entertaining abilities that make them "extraordinal."

Toma Genaro and Frankie Heath, two featured principals, were Rits Walter (Boob) McManus and Eddie Hickey were the comedy riots. Coogan and Casey do their new to offer with their frolics of life in 1980. John R. Walsh, lyric baritone, displayed a rich, full voice in his turn and the Joe Mandis Trio ended the bill with amazing equilibristic stunts.

Two Noted Films on Bowdoin Sq. Program

At the Bowdoin Square this week "the famous pair" in "Journey's End," is offered Another feature of merit presents Marion Davies in "Floodora Girl." Tomorrow night Johnny Harrigan's cabaret feature will be featured and herewith vaudeville is the treat on Friday night

SONGS CUE TO MAN'S AGE

Betty Compson is the inventor of a system which is supposed to reveal the age of a man. Miss Compson is featured in "Inside the Lines," at the Keith-Albee. She explains the time calculating feature of her "system" as follows

"There is a period in every man's life when his spirit is attuned to external influences, when music makes a lasting impression upon him. This period is usually between the ages of 18 and 25.

"Upon hearing a man's song it is merely necessary to add from 15 to 25 years to the age of the song to calculate his real age.

WHALING FILM FEATURE AT KEITH'S

There's a new voice in the sound screen, and a good one, too. Better than a good many male voices of the Hollywood colony. It is that of Dr. Robert Cushman Murphy, heard at the New B. F. Keith's this week, in one of the best film specials. Dr. Murphy, curator of the American Museum of Natural History, and Dr. Ludwig Kohl-Larsen, of Germany, have collaborated in bringing an absorbing record of Antarctic life in the form of a picture called "The Bottom of the World."

Dr. Murphy is heard throughout the film in an interesting, easily understood explanation of the expedition's work.

The whaling scenes are easily the finest ever. They were taken at South Georgia. In this land of ice and snow at the gates of the Antarctic, a band of Norwegians have established and operate a whaling base that is by far the most productive in the world and from which hundreds of barrels of whale oil are shipped

Virtually every operation in whaling is included in the scenes devoted to that industry in Dr. Murphy's film. The harpooning of the great mammals, the cleaning after they have been drawn to the cutting platform, the trying of the oil from their blubber and many others of the operations are depicted and vividly described

Dr. Murphy also takes his audience to other waters of the Antarctic and brings to the screen many strange and unusual creatures that people them.

Public Health Chairman Named for Federation

By NANCY BREWSTER

Mrs. Carl Weber Illig, Jr., of Onset is the new chairman of the department of public health for the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs. She succeeds Dr. Anna C. Palmer of Milton.

A clubwoman since 1923, medical work and the clubwoman's relation to it has always been Mrs. Illig's chief concern. When she assumes the chairmanship of one of the federation most vital and important activities popularizing public health will be her program.

From her home in Onset she informed me that her committee has not yet been named, but that within a week or so, after a conference with Mrs Carl L. Schrader, State president, she would be able to announce the slate for the next three years.

"I want to popularize public health and all its relative aspects," she said, talking of her plans, and she has many new ones, she confided.

Mrs. Illig is at present president of the Onset Woman's Club, which she founded and organized in 1921. More than 100 members belong to the group, which meets the first and third Mondays of each month at 7.30 p. m. at their clubhouse. The annual meeting takes place the first Monday in August.

Ever since Mrs. Illig left Sargent's School of Physical Education, from which she was graduated in 1912, she has devoted herself to medical activity of some kind. During the World War she served in the medical department of the U. S. Army.

And now that she has been appointed State chairman of public health for affiliated clubs of the federation, she will recapitulate past activities and have a program of public health work that will bring renown and federal recognition to the Massachusetts State Federation.

Alaska Clubwomen 'Ask for Commission to Study Delinquents

The Alaska clubwomen are trying seriously to remedy precarious conditions attendant upon the methods of dealing with delinquent women and girls in Alaska. So interested in the problem are the women of the North they have petitioned President Hoover to appoint a commission to study the situation and make plans for its solution.

The General Federation, in hearty accord with such a policy, has sent to the Alaskan Federation of Women's Clubs its endorsement of such a worth-while project, with the invitation to call upon them for any assistance and any such material as they have which might be of value in the solution.

Bay State clubwomen may remember the little woman, with boyish bobbed hair, small in stature, who spoke briefly in the midwinter business session of the State Federation at the Hotel Statler last fall. She was the president of the Alaskan Federation and she attended the meeting to bring of the trials and tribulations of her clubwomen and the difference in problems which exist there.

General Federation Report Shows Cash Balance of $99,715

A tabulated report of the treasurer of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the greatest body of organized women in the world, makes public highly interesting facts about American clubwomen.

It reveals that on March 31, 1930, according to Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, the General Federation had a total cash balance of $99,715.64, a balance indeed commensurate with the big business plan that officials of the parent club organization have been trying to get over to clubwomen ever since the Foundation Fund of $2,000,000 was announced and solicited for.

Clubwomen Adopt 3 Major Projects for Waterways Drive

Three major projects relative to a national waterways program have been endorsed by the General Federation of Womens' Clubs and will be submitted to State Federations in the fall.

They are

The flood control of the Mississippi.

Development of the St. Lawrence deep waterway.

The conservation of the boundary waters between Minnesota and Ontario.

Mrs. Frank M. Warren, chairman of the committee on water and waterways in the General Federation, points out the importance and significance of a broad and far-reaching and scientific development our our water resources, requesting that local chairman take cognizance of the General Federation stand on the matter.

And though the locales of the project may be far removed from Massachusetts, she urges support nevertheless, from every part of the country, that effective propaganda may reach Washington and those influential in the successful achievement of those projects.

Shirtwaist Frocks in Town and Out

By ANN ARDEN

Model from R. H. White Co.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs and fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

LAST YEAR it was the sunback tennis frock, this summer it is the shirtwaist frock that appears by twos and threes in every feminine closet or vacation going trunk.

* * *

THE TWO-PIECE frock returns to favor after an almost complete banishment. It is entirely different from the former waistline two-piece frock, however, being trimly belted and fitting the hips smoothly. The vogue for jackets has been an influence in bringing back this erstwhile popular style.

* * *

THE SHIRTWAIST frock is a comfortable mode, which cannot be said of all our new fashions. The briefly-sleeved shirtwaist and the high-belted or waisted skirts are planned for hot weather use. They are usually fashioned of men's silk shirting, of sheer handkerchief linens or other equally cool fabrics. The fact that these frocks are generally becoming is another factor in their popularity. They are the two-piece frocks of a season or so ago with their shirts tucked in!

* * *

ONCE YOU start buying shirtwaist frocks it gets to be a habit. The nicest part of the habit is that you can buy a dozen without feeling too much of a tug on the purse.

* * *

THE TWO-PIECE cotton broadcloth frock pictured is a clever compromise between jacket and blouse. The skirt, on hip yoke, has wide group of pleats both center back and front. The top boasts a vest effect, cut away sharply at front edges, and fastened with crystal buttons, cleverly spaced, and tie belt; short set-in sleeves, and four patch pockets, add to its comfort and convenience. The frock is in a warm beige tone, complemented by a French beret of very lightweight brown wool, and brown pumps.

* * *

LINEN PUMPS in brown, black, beige, or brightly colored prints are increasing in popularity. The fabric is cool, light weight and an excellent choice for summer wear.

* * *

ONE FEELS like a poor relative this season not to boast at least one panama headgear. Lunching at one of the delightful restaurants that moves its tables out into the open at the advent of warm weather, we counted panamas on nearly all the smart women there. Most of them were wearing models with the medium turned-down brim and shallow round crown. Colored patent leather bands were favored in order to match the costumes.

(ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

Present Pageant Tonight at Park

The first of a series of 12 pageants under the direction of the Boston park department, and held in conjunction with the Massachusetts tercentenary celebration will be given on the Playstead Franklin Park, at 8.30 o'clock tonight. Six tableaux, under the supervision of George H. Beaulieu, will feature tonight's entertainment.

Music will be furnished by the First Corps Cadets' Band and the Liberty Chorus, composed of choirs from the Trinity Church, St. Joseph's Church, the Dudley Street Baptist Church and the Associated Seamen's Summer School of Music. Governor John F. Fitzgerald will be the principal speaker and Alexander Brin will preside.

Open Office in Drive for Dry Law Repeal

With the announcement that its national board of trustees now advocates the complete repeal of the 18th Amendment, the Volstead act and the Jones law, the Boston branch of "The Crusaders" yesterday opened its headquarters at 112 Water st., under the direction of George H. F. R. Bassett as managing director.

The men who organized the Crusaders, according to its literature, were either too young to vote at the time the 18th Amendment was passed or were in the fighting service of the country.

The chairman or commander of the Boston branch is Malcolm W. Greenough, former Harvard football captain while Leo Daley is vice-chairman.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 37

HOME OF PAUL REVERE, BOSTON

Historic sites are numerous in the section of Boston where North sq. is located. The home of Paul Revere is as quaint as can be found. It is a low, worn old house, close to the sidewalk. It has a jutting upper story which distinguishes it from the other wooden dwellings which flank it.

Here Paul Revere lived in the pre-Revolutionary period. Here in its windows he showed the famous illuminated pictures of the Boston Massacre. In the middle window was a view of the "Massacre"; in another, Liberty stamping upon a soldier with a serpent, symbolizing tyranny. In still another window, an obelisk was shown with the names of the five victims; also a bust of the young schoolboy who was accidentally killed by a random shot.

Later Paul Revere sold his print, but the more substantial home was destroyed, while this one remains.

Paul Revere was born in Boston, January 8, 1735, of Huguenot ancestry. His father was Apollos Rivoire, who came from the Isle of Guernsey when he was 13. Apollos was apprenticed to John Coney at the goldsmith's trade. He married Deborah Hichborn and Paul was the third child of the union.

Paul received a common school education, attending the Old North Grammar school on North Bennet st. Then he entered his father's shop, apprenticed to learn the trade. At 27 he earned the reputation of being the most skillful gold and silversmith in Boston. He had a natural talent for drawing and taught himself engraving. Many tankards, pitchers, spoons and cups fashioned by him are still in existence.

In 1765, he became a member of the "Sons of Liberty." He was active, too, in the "Long Room Club" and the "North End Caucus."

He has been immortalized by Longfellow in his famous poem epitomizing his ride on the 19th of April, when Revere went forth to warn Hancock and Adams.

The story of the ride through the night, awaking "every Middlesex village and farm," is one of the best known of the Revolution. Each year a Paul Revere rides to Lexington along the memorable route traversed on the 19th of April by the patriot messenger in that history-making year of 1775.

Paul Revere lived a long and active life, going into many endeavors, for he was talented and versatile. He died in 1818 at the age of 83 and his resting place is in the Granary Burying Ground in the heart of Boston. A simple gravestone marks the spot.

The old home in the North End is marked by a tablet.

MISS HARD-BOILED by Jane Dixon

Raquel Sees Night Cafes With Greta, Bertie and Ginger Smith

CHAPTER 47

For three nights in succession Raquel went to the opera with Alphonse.

She hved now only for the night and its song.

On the fourth night Alphonse had to attend to important business. Her disappointment was keen. She remained in her rooms at the hotel. At 11 o'clock she was preparing to retire when the telephone rang.

"Don the war paint, dearie," Greta caroled. "I've got everything fixed for a rushy into Montmartre."

"But Greta, it's late," Raquel pleaded. She had no desire for Greta's "high jinks" to night.

"What do you mean, late?" came the protest. "It's only a little after 11."

"Yes, and I'm just about to retire for the night."

"Sa-a-y, dearie, forget it and you" "Where do you think you are? This is Paris, not the morgue"

Raquel felt rather than saw the maid Lola come into her room. Funny how Lola always happened to be within hearing distance when she was ... over the telephone.

Decides to Go

Greta Wins Point

"If you'll excuse me tonight," she said to Greta "I'm really tired. Standing all day trying new models——"

"I know. My feet are worn down to the ankles. That's why I'm taking 'em out for a rest. Come on now, dearie—be a help, will you? I got a boy friend who wants to get rid of a ticket in his box-office. He's a pal of Bertie Adams. And Bertie's coming too."

Greta really wanted her to accept. Raquel could tell it in Greta's voice. Well then, she must go. Greta was her confidante, her one friend without benefit of gain. The boyish girl with the mischievous mind had a sincere liking, an unshakable loyalty for her. She must return it in kind.

"Very well," she said. "I'll be ready if you'll call in fifteen minutes."

"Atta girl. The fireman's bride," cried Greta with relief. When Raquel turned from the the telephone Lola the maid was close at her elbow. She bit off the sharp rebuke she wanted to make.

"I'll want evening things," she ordered sharply.

"Mademoiselle is going out?" It was a protest.

"Yes."

"If Mademoiselle will tell me where she intends going, I shall know what is best to select." The oily glibness of Lola's tongue!

"You'll find a gown of black net in that second closet. An extremely plain gown That will do very well."

[illegible] pointed nose poked about the [illegible] closet until she found the [illegible]

"Perhaps Mademoiselle will find it too plain, if she is going to a gay place," she suggested slipping the gown over Raquel's head.

Her [illegible] ... over Raquel's hair. She stood back to [illegible] ... [illegible]

"Mademoiselle has an eye for what becomes her best," she treacled

Maid Pries

Raquel Is Silent

"The black wrap with the silver ruff, please," said Raquel, ignoring Lola's obvious attempt to divert suspicion from her prying

Oh! Greta was waiting for her in the [illegible] outside the lobby of the Continental [illegible] was down

"I knew old Nosey would be meandering around trying to get an eyeful Greta explained to Lola. "Bertie and Ginger Smith [illegible] host his name's Smith—just for us at the St James."

"I'm mean Lola would watch us."

"And how! Don't turn around, but she just blew in, behind the pillars by the elevator. She must have slid down seven flights of stairs."

"How does she dare?" Flares in black eyes. The flash of blue-white teeth.

"Hold it," warned Greta. "Why get yourself into an uproar? We'll give old Nosey a treat. Wander out and park ourselves in a taxi like we are all alone in the world. I'll tell the driver where to go after we get under way. Then I'll slip the starter a fistful of francs for the news, and all she'll draw will be a blank."

As the taxi turned the corner of the street, Raquel looked back. A woman was talking with the starter under the street arch in front of the hotel. Lola, the maid.

Bertie Adams and the man Greta called Ginger were waiting for them in the St. James. A strong, genial fellow was Sandy, with a crop of bright red hair that kinked stubbornly up from his brow and a sprinkle of freckles that would do credit to a juvenile motion-picture comedian

"Come on," heralded Greta, eager, as always, to be on the wing. "We're off in a cloud of dust."

"It's great to see you again," Bertie told Raquel, when they were once more bowling along the boulevards. "I thought you had changed your mind about being friends."

"Why did you think that?" asked Raquel, suddenly suspicious. She had done nothing to make Bertie reach such a conclusion

"I've telephoned your hotel at least a dozen times and never had any luck. And I've left messages."

"Oh-h." She would not let him know that neither his calls nor messages had reached her. "I've been working all day, and going to the opera at night. I'm sorry."

He knew Her eyes burned against the lids when she closed them to shut out the flashing indignation. That Alphonse should do this thing to her! Surround her with spies. Cut her off from pleasure, from the world, as if she were his chattel. That he'd dare rob her of her precious freedom!

Raquel Angry

At Alphonse's Acts

Alphonse must stop it. She would see that he did. Her throat was so tight she could not manage over the meaningless nothings with which she wanted to cover her chagrin, her mounting anger.

"Here we are," called Ginger Smith. "First hop. All out."

They had wound through narrow streets toward the top of a hill. Lights winked. There was a canopy over the sidewalk to the curb. A Cossack at the door. An Apache country. A strange city. A Club Dix-neuf. All over the face of the earth people played the same games in the same way. Wherever they went, wealth and pleasure created their own playgrounds. By a pattern.

No sooner were they settled in one of these jazz-mad places, it seemed to Raquel than they were off to another. Out from the same pattern. Varying so little that the acrasely knew one had moved. Another name, another waiter in another guise. The same faces. The same rattle of drums and moan of saxophones. The same tunes.

It was 3 o'clock in the morning when they entered the jazz palace of a bronze-skinned Queen of Clubs who learned to express the emotional frenzy of the modern jungle when, as a child she did leves dances on the banks of the Mississippi down Natchez way.

What's in Fashion?

Hats to "Wear with Anything"

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, July 22—Want a hat you can wear with anything -- or practically anything this summer?

Thousands of women and girls want just exactly that. Which is one good reason for the importance of the fashion for informal, or what they call "casual," straw hats.

And by "casual" hats, we mean those brimmed hats of rough straw, panama or leghorn that have been popping up like mushrooms in the night.

It's a great idea . . . this having one hat that does for both city and country wear. That looks equally well with a summer suit or printed chiffon or linen sports dress. Economical.

Only a few weeks ago our checkups on hat fashions showed a rather small percentage of these casual hats. Then suddenly they began to increase.

And in just a short time grew into a fashion rating as one of the most popular hat fashions of summer

Comfortable Hats

Good reasons for it . . . besides their versatility. They're light and cool . . . comfortable on the head They have brims to shade the eyes They're feminine-looking . . . like all the best summer fashions.

And it's so easy to make a colorful-up with the rest of the costume . . . simply by changing the color of the hat band as you change your dress.

You can choose one of these hats in a color—light or dark—or in natural straw shade. Colors are great . . . if your entire wardrobe is developed around one color.

But if it isn't—if your color tastes are varied and the shades of your costumes numerous—then natural straw color is best. Because it goes with anything

Varied Types

Almost any shape your fancy and your face . . . dictates, is in fashion

Various types of cloches . . . that everybody's grown so fond of. Large, floppy hats . . . that can be pulled on almost any way and still be becoming.

The good old Panama shape . . almost like a man's Panama with its ridge down the center of the crown . . . but with a wider band.

And the new sailor The new old sailor really Because very often it's almost a replica of the Gibson Girl sailor hat. Though lots of women like better the one with brim slightly tilted down

Hats Sketched

You can see them all in the sketches. First the cloche of young and loosely woven straw Next the Panama with its narrow ribbon band Third the rough straw sailor, with modified brim. And below the floppy leghorn

All of them useful, becoming and very much in summer 1930 fashion

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

SUMMER girls should wear frocks of light colors and thin fabrics, which do not bar out the life-giving rays of the sun. Sun-bathing will be the first and foremost recreation of the coming season. It is best to protect the complexion with cold cream and powder. Sunburn is skin sickness, and the sun doesn't like it. It has bad after effects.

GOING without stockings will cause burning, smarting foot soles In-soles of shoes do not absorb moisture. Heat to wear ankets When feet burn, massage with cold cream, and wrap the feet in bath towels which have been wrung out of cold water.

WHEN shampooing, do not rub the bar of soap on the hair. Shave the soap, melt it and let the liquid stand for two or three days before using. Rinse with a bathepray and finish up with a cold shower.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Wise is the man who asks for health
To brighten his life-long way,
For this is a treasure beyond the wealth
Or the splendors of famed Cathay;
A treasure that hints of the alchemy
Which sought in days of old
From the bondage of time to set men free,
And to change the dross into gold.

Wise, too, is he who asks for love,
That its sun on his path may shine
With a purer gold than the orb above
To make earthly ways divine;
For love has the hue of heavenly things,
And a spell it alone can lend
A glory over the spirit flings
When its rays like light descend

But some there are who count as dregs
All the blessings life can impart,
And best of all he prays who begs
For the gift of a grateful heart.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Assure Safe Food for Baby

A SMILING, happy, well baby is a joy to see. It wrings the heart to see a sick, helpless little baby

Dr. Copeland

It is in the summertime that little babies suffer most from colic This is because hot weather is favorable for the growth of germs, and so the baby's milk must be closely watched These minute plants, called germs or bacteria, are like all other plants, they thrive on warmth and moisture. Germs grow and multiply in enormous numbers in a bottle of milk unless the milk is clean and is kept in a cool place You cannot be sure that bottled milk is safe unless it remains in a temperature below 50 degrees F., which is the usual temperature of a good refrigerator.

The breast-fed baby is a lucky baby, especially in the Summertime A mother's milk is pure milk, and it also has peculiar properties most advantageous to her child, more so than any cow's milk could possibly have

Cow's milk, no matter how carefully it is handled and distributed, is sure to contain some of the souring germs, even though it is free from the more dangerous germs. If kept in a warm place, it takes only a few hours before the milk is teeming with bacteria capable of producing great discomfort, if not actual illness

When contaminated milk is fed to a baby, colic is near at hand. Gas forms in the intestines and violent, twisting pains are sure to follow.

The first thing to do in an attack is to stop the baby's milk feedings Give nothing but cooled, boiled water in frequent small doses Warm water alone may quiet the symptoms, but if it does not, give a small dose of milk of magnesia, or a little bit of bicarbonate of soda in warm water in order to neutralize the acidity and stop the pain

Every mother should know how to give an enema. It requires some skill and knowledge. Giving an enema will shorten the baby's illness.

In a severe attack it is wise not to return to the milk feedings for a day or two. Barley water may be given instead.

Barley water is made by adding a cupful of barley, purchased at the grocery, to a quart of water. Cook this in a double boiler for three hours, then strain through a sieve and thin with the water. It should be prepared exactly as the formula for a bottle feeding of milk is prepared. Give it to the baby at the same times as you would the regular feedings of milk.

Your Child's Play

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

I THINK that one of the biggest gaps in understanding and sympathy between parent and child occur because we grown folks have so completely forgotten the spirit of play as experienced in childhood

Our "play" — adults is a term [illegible] of ourselves the conscious stuffing off of everyday work and [illegible] pose abilities in our moments of "play" we laugh and [illegible] be careless (whether or not we are successful at it). But is the child at play, at his version of "play," carefree? Just watch one child for half an hour and I think you'll agree with me that he is anything but carefree. He is in desperate earnest. He is wholly, entirely serious over the propect in hand, even though it be only the transferring of sand from a sandpile into a dish with a spoon. When you approach a child busily playing, you approach a small business man in his office

He could only even try to get back our understanding of how we felt when we played as children we would be able to deal more sympathetically with the little people

So when we try to appreciate just how serious this activity called "play" really is we are more patient when Sonny begs for just a minute in which to finish his business on hand, we appreciate his need for a room where his projects can remain undisturbed, we appreciate his confusion and chagrin at being yanked away from something interesting, to run errands, which by adult [illegible]fo.ethought could have been made unnecessary.

Wants Cure for Blues

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am one of your constant readers and I would like your help, a cure for the blues. I am 22 years old and with little trouble pass with [illegible] but have the "inferior complex" of being awfully tall

How can I make friends—boy friends especially. I don't smoke or drink or pet. I have gone around with a few boys that have liked me but through a fault of my own, of course we parted.

I'm [illegible] of the most regular [illegible] in Roslindale but even there I have a few [illegible] friends It is awfully embarrassing to keep saying you haven't any.

I am so blue, I would like to cry all the time but for a sweet mother who always tries to shows with me I try to look happy. Now what shall I do?

AN OLD MAID

Dear An Old Maid: I don't know how to tell you to get boy friends If you haven't friends who can introduce them, and girls are awfully secretive about their male acquaintances, the other alternative is to meet them casually at dances, etc. This, of course, is bad practice because you practically never meet desirable people at a dance. If decent men do go to public dances it is with the attitude that the girls are cheap, and treat them accordingly. I'm sorry I can't help you. You'll have to trust in the law of chance.

She Does Not Play Fair

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am in love with a girl who is very much in love with—but she does not play fair! She tells me she doesn't go out with anyone but me, but I [illegible] tells me different. He says she's failing in love with a man that neither he nor her mother approves of. The girl, when I questioned her, said she didn't like this fellow, then why does she go out with him and tell lies about it?

A FRIEND.

Dear Friend—I see that you're in love or you wouldn't take a girl you do not trust so seriously. As to her lies, have you forgotten that oft-quoted line from the Psalms "I said in my haste, all men are liars" Unfortunately, this includes your friend and a good many fair charmers besides. You say this girl is very nice to go out with, why not [illegible] you wouldn't take a girl you [illegible] try taking out someone else?

How Can He Resist Girls?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

How can I help my boy friend to resist girls? He has told me he loves me and has proved it. We went together for one year and then we parted to prove our love for one year and we find we love each other more than ever

He has asked me what can he do to prove [illegible] I've told me [illegible] ever felt [illegible] I don't want it. He also [illegible] and he [illegible] of the [illegible] I'm [illegible] with other girls for a time and then leaves to meet [illegible] I can't live with [illegible] up me to help him

DOLORES

Dear Dolores -Your young man is suffering from an extraordinary case of constitutional [illegible] which, as the dictionary tells us, means "inconstant in feeling or affection; changeful; capricious." If a boy friend has no [illegible] character and resolution to resist girls on his own account, and has to apply to his sweetheart, he is what insurance companies call an unsafe risk.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer questions submitted regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.

So far this year receipts from the gaso line tax have shown a steady increase from month to month.

Henry F. Long

Corresponding gross receipts for the six months of the present year total receipts were $4,709,499, compared with receipts of $4,352,800 for the first months of 1929, an increase of $447,405 or 10.2 per cent.

On June 29 it was stated in our column that pessimism had been overdone and that the reports for the second quarter and half year soon to issue would not all be gloomy We also remarked it was likely folly to point out that the statements were likely to be the ones most promptly issued, with the poorer ones being held back.

"Like the ancient songster inquiring the latest news of his 'little dog,' it may be well to inquire the whereabouts of the long threatened poor statements of operations of corporations for the second quarter and first six months of the current year. Like the little dog's tail in the song, earnings statements thus far available, covering operations during recent months of June, are comparatively have long been promised to appear drastically 'out short.' It is not yet in the future a glorious one.

"Although reports for the first have yet been publi among good earnings. The light, make pretty good matter. Witness the statement of Standard Oil of N. J. showing for six months ending June 30 net income 2 per cent below that ago. The New big fruit concern, the Boston managed United Fruit Co., shows profits better for the six months than the first quarter of the corresponding months. Even General Electric, 49% per cent earning for the first half of 1930, much larger than might have been anticipated in the optimistic predictions. And National Biscuit's profits 1.4 per cent under last year, nevertheless provoke reasonable disappointment.

"International Cement's second quarter and first half net per cent this year was sufficient to bring results for the six months to a level only 5.3 per cent under last year's. American International's six months' net 12.1 per cent above the same 1929 half year, can hardly be characterized as wanting in encouragement. Boston Oil Co (Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. and several others might be added to the list of those companies which have made a highly satisfactory showing in the face of trying conditions.

"The complexion of earnings reports to be made available in the immediate future may not measure up to that of the majority of those already published."

John Houlahan of Hornblower & Weeks tell, me

"There is no doubt in recent months have securities representing the fundamental industries of this country been sold on a long term investment purchasing basis than now. The reason, to a great extent, is psychological, together with a recession in industrial activity as compared with 1929, which was an abnormal year. Inventories are published as well as raw materials are declining.

• • •

"Many products are selling below the cost of production, a condition which cannot continue. The next step will be increased production, and from that period of progress and prosperity unparalleled in the history of the industry, the study shows

BULL FORCES AGAIN BUSY IN WALL ST.

New York, July 22 Bull forces [illegible] wiping out the advance of the entire previous week, was a little discouraging in its severity. It was regarded in brokerage circles as having [illegible] withdrawal of support rather than important liquidation.

Professional traders, who have been awaiting an opportunity to get into the market at lower levels, replaced those who took their profits and deserted the cause.

MIDDLE OPTIMISTIC

Public participation in the market held at a low ebb, but speculators for the ise expect that the attracting of a public following again to be a slow process.

Commission house opinion remained mildly optimistic, but was inclined to look for further temporary reactions, as the market quickly becomes overbought with participation as limited as it is now. Business news providing little encouragement.

The city's industrial and corporate news indicated that current operations are coming increasingly under the influence of mid-summer quiet. Steel mill operations in the Chicago district have been cut this week to between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity, against 60 to 65 per cent last week.

Second quarter and first half earnings statements continued to show notable exceptions to the downward tendency. Allis Chalmers reported first half net of $1.97 a share, against $1.73; General Foods $2.01, against $1.89, and United States Leather showed a small balance for the quarter, against a large deficit last year.

Westinghouse Electric's first half net of $3.13 a share, however, was substantially below the $4.93 reported for the same period last year ago, and Atlantic Refining's $1.05 for the first half was only one-third the net reported a year ago.

OIL CURTAILMENT

Early estimates of last week's crude oil output indicated further curtailment of about 30,000 barrels a day, largely in the mid-continent area, which encouraged further activity in the oils. Credit conditions were unchanged with call loans offering at 2 per cent.

Further selling appeared at the opening, but prices on stocks were well supported [illegible] before midday [illegible] became vigorous. Three hour [illegible] business spell in the early afternoon when the more active stocks sold off from a fraction to a point from Saturday's levels.

American Can was a leader, rising more than 4 points in active training General Motors was active, advancing moderately. Its second quarter statement will appear in a few days, and is expected to show net of about $1.20 a share, against 98 cents in the first quarter.

Such issues as United States Steel, General Electric, Radio Keith, Radio, Standard of New Jersey, Dupont, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, New York Central, Electric Auto Lite and Johns Manville advanced about 2 to 3 or more points.

Among the wider gainers was Auto Strop, which moved up about 5 to a new top, accompanied by unconfirmed rumors of a merger deal with Gillette. Eastman and International Business Machines soon sold up more than 5, and Case at the same time jumped 10.

The closing was strong, with numerous issues selling at new tops for the day and close to the best prices. Leaders rallied one to four points.

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes ranged from fractions to over 7 points. Investment trust issues were lower with American Founders and United Founders both being quoted at new low figures.

Stone & Webster advanced 3 points, American Telephone 2½, Anaconda 1¼ and United Shoe 1. Gillette gained 2 points and New England Telephone was 1¼ higher.

Waldorf System preferred slumped over 7 points to a new low for the year. Bigelow Sanford was within a point of its year's low, down 4 points. Edison and Atchison were each off around 2 points. Pacific Mills dipped over a point. Boston & Maine, a standard and General Electric were up around a point each.

CAN PAY DIVIDENDS.

W. A. Newton—I own twenty shares Woolworth at 64, now lower. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans.—Buy Woolworth has paid dividends in varying amounts from 1921. The annual rate on the new stock, issued in two and one-half-for-one split May,1929, is $2.40 a share. In 1929 earnings were $3.66 a share compared with $3.63 in 1928. Sales for six months ended June 30 were $131,518,974, contrasted with $135,600,983 for corresponding 1929 period. It is thought likely, however, that net profits will be larger. If you bought for income you can afford to ignore fluctuations. If your interest in the stock is speculation, you must come to your own decision.

THREE STOCKS.

A. H., Somerville—I am comfortably situated with an established business. I have $5,000 in a savings bank at 4½ per cent. I want to invest in stock. How about Allis-Chalmers? What does the company manufacture?

Ans.—Allis-Chalmers is a large manufacturer of heavy machinery and mechanical and electrical equipment. Dividends in varying amounts have been paid from 1926. Initial quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share November 15, 1929, and the present stock, issued in four-for-one split September, 1929, was increased to 75 cents February, 1930, since maintained. Earnings for 1929 were $3.78 a share; in the first quarter of current year, 93 cents a share. Unofficial estimate for second quarter to end June 30 indicated an increase over that figure. The yield now is 5.3 per cent. If that pleases you, buy 30 shares. For better diversification, add 10 shares each St. Louis-San Francisco preferred and Consolidated Gas & Electric $6.50 preferred. The total cost is $3000 and you will get an annual income of $185.

A SPECULATION

A. S., Malden.—I should like information on Parmelee Transportation. Several persons have told me to buy the stock.

Ans.—Parmelee Transportation Co., incorporated April, 1928, operates, through subsidiaries, line of taxicabs, buses and trucks. Funded debt is $5,000,000 debenture 6s, 1946, and about $160,000 obligations of subsidiaries. Capitalization consists of 81,000,000 $ per cent convertible preferred and 283,018 shares no par common. After allowance for preferred dividends, net income for 1929 was equivalent to $4.42 a share on the common. Unofficial agencies estimate earnings for second quarter of current year will approximate the 58 cents a share reported for the first quarter. An initial monthly dividend of 12½ cents a share paid August, 1929, has since been maintained. The stock, which at recent levels yields about 14 per cent, is a speculation.

CURB MARKET IS DULL, WITH PRICES FIRM

New York, July 22—The curb market was dull most of the time today with prices firm.

Speculative interest was limited. Utilities were fairly active and there was some demand for the oils based on the improvement in the production figures from the mid-continent fields.

Irregularly lower prices of the opening gave way to firmness when it became apparent that yesterday's short selling was not being renewed in any volume, and confidence seemed to increase.

Electric Bond & Share pushed well above 80 for the best gain among the active utility shares. American Gas & Electric and American Light & Traction were almost equally strong.

Advances in the oil shares were nominal. Humble, Houston and Cosden turned over in small blocks at higher levels and were joined by Cities Service and Gulf. Indiana Pipe Line rose a point.

There was little news affecting the industrials or specialties, which were dull. Ford Motor of Canada "A" climbed more than a point and Deere worked higher, Zonite was moderately active around the lower levels of the year.

Pittsburgh & Lake Erie one of the few rail stocks traded on the curb, rallied fractionally.

Investment Company shares were dull and mostly firm. United Founders ran into selling that carried the stock into new low ground.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent.

Wheat Is Higher After Soft Start

Chicago, July 22—Influenced by sharp upturns in corn values, wheat scored price gains today after a sag at the start. The rise of the corn market was associated with the fact that recent rains have failed to reach large sections of the corn belt and that indications today pointed to a return of hot weather.

Opening unchanged to ⅛c. off, wheat later rallied to ⅛c. over Saturday's closing figures, and then turned sharply lower, with prices ½c. to 1c. under the finish of last week. Subsequently, however, there was a recovery of ½c. to 1c. from the bottom.

Corn started ⅛c. to ¼c. higher, and then moved up sharply, with prices ¾c. to 1c. above Saturday's finish. Oats were firm. Provisions suffered neglect.

CAN. PACIFIC IS GREATEST RAIL SYSTEM

By B. C. FORBES

In Western Canada, July 22—They were men who braved the adventure of spanning the Canadian rockies by railroad. Their sheer audacity makes you gasp. Here you encounter a dozen Switzerlands, countless Alps. But neither mountain nor gorge, neither tenthousand feet peaks strung on chains of precipitous crevasses thwarted or daunted these intrepid pioneers, mostly Scots, and therefore accustomed to no bed of roses.

B. C. Forbes

My hat is off, too, to the brains of today that have been able to earn 10 per cent dividends on the Canadian Pacific common stock. Year after year you traverse hundred after hundred miles of territory with scarcely a sign of industry or husbandry, you wonder how such profits can be wrung from such conditions.

E. W. Beatty is the man who has ably guided the C. P. R.'s destinies in recent years.

* * *

We in the States are fond of claiming for "big business" that it is the greatest thing on the face of the earth.

Well, America has nothing to match the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's many-sided, worldwide ramifications and operations. It can properly itself as "the world's greatest travel system, railways, steamships, hotels, telegraphs, telephones, colonization, industrial development." It circles the globe by rail and water. Its chain of hotels would constitute a huge enterprise, and the C. P. R. has the reputation of doing well everything it undertakes.

* * *

I sought out President Beatty as the ideal authority from whom to get a truthful description of conditions in the Dominion.

Here is his carefully considered statement:

"While Canada has not escaped world conditions, evidenced in lessened buying power, resultant cooling up of production and industry and increased unemployment, I am of the opinion that this country is less affected by adverse conditions than are most others. There appears sound reason for believing also that much confidence and financial depression as we are now experiencing is most likely to be short-lived. Presuming that high pressure industrial production over an extended period is the main basis of the unsettlement, it is reasonable to expect a comparatively early resumption of normal conditions in most lines of trade and industry on this side of the border. There is but little or no overproduction in most Canadian trades, and consequently consumption has less to catch up than is the case elsewhere.

"Much depends upon the coming wheat crop and the manner in which future markets will absorb it. If foresee no reason why it should not move to market this autumn at a normal rate of speed. The outlook is now for a good crop, and if it is satisfactorily moved during the coming fall and winter, Canadian conditions generally should be well re-established on a plane of progressive prosperity. At the present time there is a trend towards lessening unemployment and the diversification of Canadian industry, which has been so marked a feature of the past few years, development, has by no means been entirely checked by the unsettling conditions of recent months. Railway earnings have suffered and will probably continue to do so until autumn, but I look for a notable betterment in this respect before the end of the year.

"During the past three or four years Canada has enjoyed great acceleration in the development of natural resources, and this movement has not been seriously checked up to the present time. The general resumption of normal business activity would still further quicken this development and would have an important stimulating effect upon all lines of Canadian trade and industry."

THE BOSTON PORT IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Among those who are benefiting from the tercentenary celebration are the various steamship companies, which carry large parties of excursionists in and out of Boston harbor. Hundreds of visitors are eager to make one of the several fine cruises now available.

The ship news editor, accompanied by his "shore captain," spent Sunday on the delightful cruise to Provincetown. The sturdy Dorothy Bradford carried one of her greatest loads of the season, but despite the crowding no one seemed to be discomforted. Many seemed to enjoy the occasion all the more.

The steamship company had automatic counters at work and when the legal limit was reached closed the gangplanks. These spacious little boats will house more than an ocean liner, carrying all of 1600.

For four hours each way, the excursionists enjoyed a warm sun, which was made deceptive because of the cooling breeze. For two hours in Provincetown "raids" on shore dinner establishments was the program.

Fisheries Outing

Next Saturday afternoon about 500 members of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association will attend the annual outing of the organization at the "Fo'c'sle" in Marshfield. This will be in conjunction with the town's tercentenary pageant, which is entitled: "The Return of the Fishermen to Marblehead." About 15 to 20 fishing craft of Boston and Gloucester will participate. Among the ships probably will be the Gertrude L. Thebaud, contender for the international fishermen's race honors. Many of the fishermen will be dressed in the old colonial costumes.

HARBOR BRIDGE

THE HARBOR is being increasingly recognized as a source of enjoyment by outside organizations. This was shown by the act of the Ladies' Helping Auxiliary of the Home Jewish Children, who chartered the steamer Allerton of the Nantasket line. About 500 sailed around the harbor and outside, enjoying bridge and other games. About 400 disabled veterans from the Chelsea Naval Hospital also took a trip as the guests of Suffolk County, American Legion, which chartered the King Philip for a day's fishing trip.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject for today's "Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is Luther Gruber, Boston manager of the importing firm of Habicht-Braun Company.

Luther Gruber

Gruber has one of the most interesting jobs in the port, for he supervises the importing of large quantities of bakers' and confectioners' supplies from all over the world. He has an intimate knowledge of delicacies of all foreign lands.

In the Foreign Commerce Club, Gruber is a member of the industrial and commercial relations committee. He is active in the Kiwanis Club and follows sports as his hobby. He is especially keen on hockey, football and baseball. He always has a good word for everybody and is sincerely liked in the harbor.

BLOCKING THE PIER

From several sources in the harbor, reports are being received that shipping interests are arousing for a campaign against the present tendency of the Commonwealth to use the state pier. The principal purpose of this Commonwealth pier is to serve shipping interests, yet steady encroachments are being made upon the space. Reports are heard that the entire Public Works Department may move to "Commission" Row. Shippers do not take issue with the proposition that the public works force needs more room, but they think developing a determined resentment against the crowding of the pier. The American-Hawaiian Line was obliged to dock one of its ships at another pier recently, and passenger liners are finding many difficulties in handling their crowds. Those close to the situation are predicting that a decided will arise not only for the stopping of further encroachments, but also the ultimate removal of the automobile registry from this pier.

NEW SEA RULES

The local office of the foreign and domestic commerce department at the Customs House is interested in informally obtaining the opinion of harbor people on the new proposed sea traffic rules. These were suggested by Hickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector-general of the steamboat service. He revised the Fairfax rules and recommended two changes in the system of sea traffic in the Massachusetts bays. The first was the institution of two sea lanes, one for going and one for inbound traffic. The second is called for a revision of laws regarding transportation of cargoes which are dangerous.

Solving Unemployment

Employers Realize Seriousness of Problem

The eighty thousand employes of the General Electric Company are accepting by overwhelming majority the terms of the unemployment fund system proposed to them in behalf of the company by President Gerard Swope.

Mr. B. C. Forbes informs you in his entertaining and valuable financial columns in this newspaper that the big corporations of the country are now giving more serious attention than ever before to the duty and necessity of protecting their employes against the loss of wages in the periodic and seasonal lapses.

Procter & Gamble and the Armours, the packers, are shown to have elaborate systems of unemployment relief which guarantee the workers especially when production has caught up with the demands for their products. Mr. Forbes quotes George F. Johnson of the Endicott-Johnson Company and President Charles A. Stone of Stone & Webster as stating that these departures are bound to make a vast improvement in the relationships between employer and employe.

While some of these systems differ in detail their basis is essentially the same. The employe contributes a percentage of his income when he is at work and an equal amount is donated to the fund by the company. When employment ceases, through no fault of his own, the employe is paid regularly from the fund in proportion to his regular wages and to the needs of himself and family.

The social justice of the system is irrefutable. When we hear the cry of paternalism and socialism raised against it, we can reply that the principle exists in the national government through its retirement fund and in practically all the States through their pension allotments.

The regret is that the worthy idea has been so long delayed; that occasions of stress which the country has undergone have been necessary the more firmly to implant its justice into the minds of many employers.

When a man has the will and ambition to work but finds himself deprived of it by circumstances which he does not control and to which he did not contribute he should not be compelled to bear most heavily the burden of lean times. Germany's unemployment system is built upon the social theory that the employer must manifest a continuing interest in the worker. Without such a system the German Government would doubtlessly have been overthrown by its sorely pressed people during the post-war cataclysms.

Come to New England

Certain Way to Avoid Excessive Heat

An unprecedented heat wave has blanketed the country. No section has been free from it. In Washington the temperature was 105, in Richmond 107 and the humidity devastating. In St. Louis sheets were sewn together, filled with ice and strung along where passersby could apply their foreheads to it. Livestock perished in the mid-West. The grain crops wilted and died. Asphalt sidewalks became melted pools of tar.

Drink plenty of water. Wear light clothing and eat sparingly, principally fruits and vegetables. Don't rush, obtain rest and try to avoid fret and worry.

Those are the common advices which the medical experts will give. Let us add one suggestion to them. Every resident of New England should make it a point to postcard some friend in the sections of the country which have suffered severely reading somewhat as follows:

"Come to New England. We have had the lowest temperature and the lowest humidity. America's most comfortable vacation ground welcomes you."

Frankly, we would like them. They would enjoy the relief. We could serve them and ourselves at the same time. What could be fairer than that?

For Industrial Peace

Attorney Robert Gallagher's denial that the dispute between the union and non-union truck interests in the building trades has at any time held the threat of violence is comforting.

Massachusetts is equipped with the most ample labor laws known to this country. They were conceived in the spirit of conciliating the differences which periodically arise between industry and the workers, of affording the means for non-compulsory arbitration.

They contain a constant invitation to make use of them in order that protracted contentions may be avoided, with the waste they cause to employers and the hardship they impose upon the employes.

That spirit of co-operation ought to predominate, especially at this time. The profits of industry are not so great nor is employment so abundant that they both should be foregone.

McINTYRE ABROAD

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, JULY 22—Just as the dapper little Paris gendarme with his cute shoulder caps, waxed mustache and enameled white club amuse the visitor so does the London cab and bus driver. There is no freemasonry among them and their wells of sarcasm are deep and acrid. They fairly spit venom.

Each is a road hog in a city of narrow streets. They mock and abuse each other and exchange unprintable epithets. They have no wit and their lives seem a perpetual growl. This morning driving to Fleet street my driver locked horns verbally with a bus Jehu. The air turned sulphuric blue.

He nearly unhinged my neck dropping behind the busman and jockeying in front of him to unloose a flood of billingsgate. His parting shot as he swung dimly around the corner on two wheels was: "Your 'ol woman, she was owled to the gizzard again last night." Another way of saying the busman's wife was drunk.

The London Bobby, however, is a totally different species. He is more than a policeman. He is a guide, counsellor and friend. He is especially considerate toward the provincial and the foreigner. Address one of them as "Inspector" and the flattery will make him your slave.

The chin-trapped Bobby breathes law and order — the triumph of the uniform. If he rebukes you he humble. I know from experience. One time here when I was a bit more of a smartie than now I sassed a bobby. I got a dressing down I never forgot. He cured me of sucking eggs from then to now.

London, as you know, is a sartorial heaven for the male shopper. I always strike out for the Burlington Arcade to see the haberdashery, shirt, hat and boot shops. Many articles are priced in dollars—such as: "$5.07 approx."—the first time England has ever bowed or even nodded toward the dollar.

The most masculine of thoroughfares are Savile Row, St. James' street and Pall Mall. The predominate type of well dressed Londoner is habited of mornings in black coat, striped trousers, black derby at the proper angle, white soft collared shirt with deep blue tie and of course spatted and monocled.

* * *

For the lover of parks, London is a mecca, distinguished by scenic vistas, flowers, clumps of sudden woods, silvery rivulets and coy paths. They hug the past with wagonettes, dog carts and other assortments of the Victorian gig. In one today I saw a red coated hunter on a caracoling mount—like a rare old print. It is perhaps because London is so grey and gloomy the parks stir the imagination. Anyway they seem more inspiring and vivid here than almost any other place I've ever been.

* * *

Berkeley Square has been glorified recently by the successful play of that name in New York. I passed through it this afternoon—a small sunless patch flooded with ancient quiet and opulent sobriety. At No. 11, Horace Walpole lived. "Auld Robin Gray" was written at No. 21 and Clive ended his life at No. 45 with poison, if memory serves. Of many streets running off Berkeley is Charles and at No. 42 once lived the dandiacal immortal Beau Brummell. Passing his abode I somehow thought of Jimmy Walker. And adjusted by bright orange cravat.

* * *

I stopped into one of the ancient pubs, featuring old ale and a sanded floor, for a lemonade—and it was served piping hot. The pretty bar maid, who did not look unlike Billie Burke, fell into talking about America. She wanted to know all about Al Capone.

* * *

One of the noticeable changes here is in drug stores. They used to be staid apothecaries but have gone completely American chain store. The old chemist's chromatic window display has given way to safety razors, rubber dolls, lead pencils and cut rate books. The soda fountain in one offered a "Greta Garbo sundae."

* * *

And along Piccadilly I ran across something I had never seen before —a condiment shop. Its window was a crazy quilt of exotic and peppery delicacies from every corner of the civilized world. "Hot stuff" I remarked to my wife which is the absolute low record for wheeze whittling on this excursion. But a fellow has to get off something now and then.

* * *

Bond street is London's Fifth avenue and rue de la Paix. Tripping along it this afternoon was Anna May Wong, the Chinese cinema cutie, looking very princess du pays de porcelaine—I just can't shake off my French. It just occurs to me a Frenchman doesn't speak his language. He gargles it.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Isn't a College Grad?

WHY DOES the world give a college grad the razz? Why does it treat him as if he still belonged on a kiddie car?

Elsie Robinson

Bill would like to know. By return mail, if possible. For Bill is "plenty peeved." A few weeks ago he was the big noise on the campus. Now, armed with a sheepskin and all ready to do his stuff, he isn't even regarded as a small squeak in the old home town. He's just Doc Wilson's kid—home from college. And the best he gets is a patronizing smile.

So Bill rises to demand: "Why do people insist on regarding a college graduate as a kind of joke? You know as well as I, Miss Robinson, that a fellow who really qualifies in college has to hustle. I'd like to see these old fossils do the amount of cramming I've done in the last four years. And yet you would think I had been going to some kindergarten.

"And their attitude toward athletics is even worse. Everybody raves about a fellow who bangs up an endurance record in some jungle or desert, but the average college athlete goes through 10 times as much punishment in the course of his training. Yet nobody at home thinks that amounts to anything.

"My folks have been good to me. They sent me through college and I'm grateful. But I bet they'd take any day laborer more seriously than they do me. And it certainly makes a fellow feel sore to be treated like a baby after he's earned a big place for himself on the campus."

Why does the world treat the average college grad as a joke? Because, son, for all practical purposes, he usually is.

Yes, I know how you grind. You learn plenty and you take plenty of punishment, too. But there's one all-important thing you don't learn in college, Bill, and that's Life. You will probably deny this. You are sure that you have the low down on life, because you can translate the jokes in Campus Comics and are hep to all the brawls.

But that isn't living. That's just cutting up. And has about as much relation to real life as a squat tag has to a prison riot. For there is one element in real life which college life lacks—and that element is responsibility.

You think there's a lot of responsability in making your credits or holding up your end in the big game? Sure there is—of a sort. Just as there's a certain amount of responsability involved in beating the kid next door at marbles. But that's kid responsability—not man responsibility.

Man responsibility carries penalties—real penalties. The only thing that's penalized if you fumble in football or flunk in your classes is your conceit and your dad's pocketbook.

But when you go into a huddle with Life you've got to be prepared to gamble all you've got—Life won't give a hoot for your conceit or make excuses for you if you fail.

You won't be an upper class man in Life, with special prerogatives thereto. You'll just be a regular gob, getting the works.

Why do folks treat a day laborer more seriously than they do you? That's why. He's had the works and you haven't. But stick around—they're on the way!

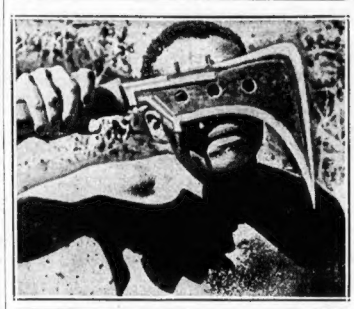
A Savage Weapon

Childishly Useless Against Modern Arms



SALUTING HIS CHIEF

The knife is held up to salute the chief of the tribe, and the warrior looks at the chief through the holes in the combination knife and axe.

You can easily imagine the effect of a thousand such savages, ready at their chief's command to begin the slaughter with such weapons.

And yet a million savages armed with these hatchet-knives would be utterly useless in modern war. As they started their charge, howling and brandishing these African "meat cleavers" machine guns would rattle, and they would be mowed down like ripe grain before the scythe, or a barrage of explosive bullets from bigger guns would blow the savages to pieces, 100 at a time.

Or perhaps their charge would carry them into a zone supplied with poisonous gas—that would cause them and their weapons to sink to the earth together.

The average man looks on this picture and the African weapon as primitive, a part of LONG AGO.

The scientific eye sees in this sharp blade made of iron a product that in the history of human beings is INTENSELY MODERN.

Dr. Osborne, learned head of the New York Museum of Natural History, says it can be proved that men of various types have lived upon the earth at least FORTY MILLION YEARS.

Yet only 12,000 years ago they were in the Stone Age: their only weapons were sharpened flints, sharp pieces of wood hardened in the fire, sharpened bones or teeth of animals, bows and arrows, and rude spears.

The Bronze Age with its soft metallic weapons and instruments came afterward. This piece of sharpened steel held up by the savage represents a high degree of industrial development that took millions upon millions of years for its production.

And now, suddenly, in our age of poison gas, machine guns, high explosives, the hideous sharp weapon of steel becomes a mere child's toy, as worthless and unimportant now in war as the bow and arrow would have been a hundred years ago.

When science starts it moves rapidly. Through millions of years men traveled on foot or on the backs of animals. Then within the past hundred years, came the steamboat, the steam locomotive, and life changed.

Few of us realize that before steam came the population of Great Britain, now over 40,000,000, was only 6,000,000. Without steam and the industries that it created the lands that now support 40,000,000 could support 6,000,000 only.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

LUTHER BURBANK'S blackberry was one success among 65,000 unsuitable combinations; the parents of his edible spineless cactus were isolated from among hundreds of grandchildren of a cross, some of which were more hopeless in appearance, more spiney and more woody than either parent.

Among two thousand in the second generation of a cross between Oriental and Opium Poppy, no two were alike.

H. G. Wells

This, of course, is entirely in accord with Mendelian principles: the variety of new types is due to new recombinations having taken place among the many different genes brought in by the two parents. Curiously enough, Burbank did not seem to realize this. He was a Mendelian without admitting it.

But the most remarkable success so far achieved in applying genetic principles to commercial practice has been the work of that practical people, the Dutch.

In 1928 two-thirds of the total sugar crop of Java (a sugar crop second only to that of Cuba) was grown from a pure stock of sugar cane known as "P.O.J. 2878." This year (1929) over 95 per cent of the crop is being grown from it.

This cane (we are utilizing the information in Mr. Ormsby-Gore's interesting report on his visit to Malaya, Ceylon, and Java in 1928) has a yield per acre nearly 20 per cent greater than any other known variety; and in addition is more resistant to the numerous ills that cane is heir to in the East Indies.

Only in 1921 was the possibility of creating such an improved strain first seriously envisaged.

A high-yielding variety of cultivated sugar cane was crossed with a wild Javanese cane which, though very resistant to disease, contains no sugar at all.

Selection among the descendants, together with the judicious admixture of genes from other cultivated varieties, led by 1928 to the production of this new and really marvelous P.O.J. 2878. Its field tests took two more years, and it then began to be grown commercially on the large scale.

Incidentally, it is very interesting to find that the improved variety has 120 chromosomes instead of the 40 of its principal cultivated ancestor, in this respect providing a striking parallel with wheat, whose high-yielding varieties all have 42 chromosomes instead of the 14 of the most primitive wild wheats.
